

On Las Vegas Business Trip

Resnick Is Dead at 44

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Ellenville's former Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick, D-N.Y., a self-made millionaire whose often stormy political career included a joust with the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, died Monday of a heart attack.

Resnick, who was on a business trip in Las Vegas, was found dead in his hotel room. A business associate had called police after Resnick failed to keep an appointment.

Resnick's political star rose almost as fast as his business career, but Kennedy's assassination triggered a backlash that ended the congressman's public life a year ago with a humiliating defeat in a Democratic primary for the U. S. Senate.

With his brothers Harry and Louis he turned a $7,000 investment in an Ellenville barn into Channel Master Corp., a $45 million electronics industry. He tired of this after eight successful years that made him a millionaire and sold his interest.

Editorial on page 6.

He then went to Hawaii on a vacation and stayed three years entering a successful housing business.

Upon his return to the states he entered politics. Friends scoffed when he ran as a Democrat in the lower Hudson Valley district where only Republicans had been elected for decades.

With a help from President Johnson's 1964 landslide, Resnick narrowly won. Resnick became a loyal supporter of Johnson's, and in 1966 his allegiance paid off.

Johnson made only a brief trip to New York State to help Democratic congressional candidates seeking reelection, but one mandatory stop was in Ellenville to help Joe Resnick. Resnick won reelection easily this time.

In the political turmoil of 1968 Resnick entered the bitter three way Democratic senate primary. Vietnam became the main issue and Resnick was a staunch Johnson supporter, often attacking Kennedy's anti-war stance.

Kennedy's assassination hit Resnick's campaign like a sledgehammer, and the growing anti-war sentiment in the state became anti-Resnick as well. Resnick originally considered the front-runner, finished a poor third in the race, with peace candidate Paul O'Dwyer winning the nomination.

Resnick's campaign is said to be the most expensive primary contest ever waged in New York State. He admitted contributing $1 million to his own cause, and it is believed his campaign cost at least twice that amount.

He earned a reputation as a liberal in Congress before the war issue cropped up. He was an outspoken foe of injustice, whether it was being practiced against Negroes in Alabama or Jews in Russia.

Resnick is survived by his two brothers, his wife, the former Ruth Lehner, and four children, Jeffrey, 20, Deborah, 18, Todd 15 and David 10.

Funeral services have tentatively been scheduled for 2 p.m. Wednesday at the Slutsky Jewish Community Center in Ellenville. Burial will be at the Hebrew Aid Cemetery in Wawarsing.

Friends and Foes— Eulogies Pour Forth

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON

The stormy petrel that was Joseph Y. Resnick was eulogized today by friend and foe alike from his home in Ellenville to the halls of Congress where he had served for four years.

Fish Eulogy in House

Hamilton Fish Jr., the man Resnick defeated for Congress in 1966 offered the eulogy in the House of Representatives to his former opponent at noon today.

Congressman Fish, the first of many eulogizers of the Ellenville Democrat, said to his fellow House members, "It is with great sorrow that I rise to inform the House of the untimely death at the age of 44 of one of its former members, Joseph Y. Resnick of Ellenville, N. Y."

"To the thousands in the Hudson Valley who knew him as Joe Resnick, the death of our former colleague, who served in the 89th and 90th Congress, at such an early age, is a deep tragedy. I am personally saddened by the news."

Fish continued, "In his brief 44 years, Congressman Resnick, the son of immigrants to this country, became a millionaire. In his lifetime, his tremendous energy and native ability led to a number of significant inventions, the creation of a business empire and finally to the halls of Congress. He was a rare individual and we who knew him and the country will be poorer by his death."

"Mr. Speaker, Joe Resnick had a natural political sense. He will be remembered for his loyalty to his party and to his ideals and convictions."

Worthy, Courageous Foe

"I remember him as a worthy and courageous opponent. In his four years in Congress he brought a new dimension of work and service to the people of the Hudson Valley he represented. He set the high standards of concern for the people of his district for all to follow."

Dr. Gerald P. Gorman, former Ulster County Democratic chairman, and perhaps Resnick's closest political associate in the 28th District, was not available for comment today. However, another close associate, John Bonilla, Democratic chairman from Woodstock, said, "We in Woodstock were terribly shocked by the death of Joe Resnick. He was a fighter who fought for the people and the people are going to miss him."

County, City Edicts

Peter J. Savago, chairman of the Ulster County Legislature, who has ordered county flags at half staff until after the funeral tomorrow, said, "Joe Resnick's death at such an early age came as a shock to me. He was a dynamic man."

Mayor Raymond W. Garrahan, who has ordered city flags at half staff for five days in memory of Resnick, said today "Resnick's name was a household word in the 28th District." "He did his utmost to serve the people," Garrahan said. "I express my sympathies to members of his family."

A Challenge, A Victory

Resnick burst on the political scene in 1964 when he challenged Congressman J. Ernest Wharton for his seat in the 28th district. Resnick won a narrow victory in that campaign to become the first Democrat elected from the 28th District in more than 70 years. The landslide victory of President Lyndon B. Johnson in 1964 was considered a major factor in Resnick's upset of Wharton.

Resnick stood for reelection in 1966 against Hamilton Fish. That too, was a hard fought battle, with the President himself, coming to Ellenville to speak in behalf of Resnick. Resnick had been a staunch supporter of Johnson's Vietnam policy, a position which numerous political analysts were to say would cost Resnick the

Aero Lake Hunt Goes on for Missing Hunter

By WALTER S. CLARK

TOWN OF ESOPUS

Grappling efforts by deputy sheriffs and volunteer firemen were continued today for 40-year-old Harry Lyons, of 230 Broadway, Port Ewen, who was presumed to have drowned in Aero Lake off Route 9W while duck hunting.

Lyons, the father of seven children, left his home at 5 a.m. Monday to go hunting at the lake not far from his home.

The boat Lyons had been using and duck decoys and other hunting equipment have been found, the sheriff's office reported.

Sgt. Raymond Davis said relatives started to look for the missing man when he failed to return home at 6 p.m.

Robert White of 313 Washington Avenue, a brother-in-law of Lyons, called the sheriff's office at 9:35 p.m. to report the man was missing and that his automobile had been found near Aero Lake.

Sheriff William B. Martin quickly organized a search party of several deputies and went to the scene. At 11 p.m.

Deputy Donald Policastro reported Lyons' boat had been capsized with its bow heading downward in about 10 feet of water some distance off shore.

Further search disclosed the duck decoys and other equipment identified as belonging to the Port Ewen man.

The Port Ewen Fire Department in charge of Chief Wesley Clark responded to a call and provided emergency lighting equipment and grappling irons that were used with the equipment provided by the sheriff's department. Deputy sheriffs and volunteer firefighters continued dragging operations at the lake until about 1 a.m. when the search was called off until daybreak today.

Sgt. Davis said members of Lyons' family had informed authorities that he had been in good health and that he frequently had gone duck hunting in the Aero Lake area. Several boats were used by searchers as they combed the waters.

Urban Renewal Would Get Top Priority From Koenig

KINGSTON

Francis R. Koenig, the Democrat-Liberal candidate for mayor of Kingston, said today that urban renewal would be a matter of top priority in his administration if he is elected on Nov. 4.

Koenig, referred to the complexities of the program and said he would discuss four main areas in a series of position statements, giving his viewpoints on the problems and his approach to their solution.

The four main areas of discussion will be:

- Urban renewal projects costs as the affect our tax dollars;
  - Citizen Committees—Their involvement and participation in urban renewal;
  - The proposed arterial route and its effect on the Broadway East urban renewal program;
  - Demolition vs. development
- Koenig said, "If elected mayor I shall take whatever executive or other action is necessary to complete the urban renewal program in a manner that will be in the best interests of all the people of Kingston." He noted that urban renewal affects the entire tax structure of the city.

Koenig said that the influence of the mayor's office "in every good sense" would be exerted, not to create political control over the urban renewal agency, but to give a driving force to the agency, guide and lead that agency to press forward to a wholly successful conclusion.

Koenig said he has discussed his four point program with urban renewal executive director, James G. Connors, and that they have reviewed an interim report by the agency. (The report will be published in a two part series in The Freeman on Thursday and Friday.)

Koenig played an active part in the 1967 investigation of urban renewal in Kingston by the late Joseph Y. Resnick, then Congressman from the 28th District. At the time, Koenig was the city's alderman-at-large.

Bath Time in Fun City

It may not be Saturday night, but Mayor John Lindsay and the New York Mets could care less as they bathe in glory of victory and vintage champagne in the Mets' locker room after New York's darlings won the National League pennant with a 7-4 drubbing of the Atlanta Braves Monday at Shea Stadium. Hizzoner has his locks massaged with the heady wine by Jerry Grote and Rod Gaspar. Lindsay told newsmen that he was sending a greeting to the Mayor of Baltimore, saying that the Mets would once again prove the superiority of New York City sports teams over those of Baltimore, an obvious reference to the fact that the Jets had defeated the Colts in the Super Bowl and also that the Knicks had dumped the Bullets in the NBA playoffs. More Met pictures and pennant stories on page 16 of the sports section. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Shortchanging Charged By Candidate Tyrrell

KINGSTON

James J. Tyrrell, Republican candidate for mayor of Kingston, today charged city officials with "shortchanging the residents of Kingston by refusing to comment on funds paid to the Wainscott Sand Corporation."

Tyrrell had raised the question of illegal financial transactions last Wednesday by the Democratic administration in regards to the construction of a baseball field in the Ann Street section of the Broadway East urban renewal project.

Mayor Raymond W. Garrahan has refused to comment on the incident.

Tyrrell said today that he has asked Emilio Primo (D Eighth Ward), chairman of the Common Council's Auditing Committee, to investigate the matter. "He has not acted," Tyrrell said. Tyrrell also criticized Alderman-at-Large T. Robert Gallo and City Clerk Thomas R. Lyle for not offering an explanation.

Tyrrell said, "The president of the Common Council (Gallo) has called special meetings of the Common Council on other matters but has not done so in regards to this matter."

Tyrrell said that he had sent letters of inquiry to the three members of the Auditing Committee and had not received replies from the two Democratic members, Primo and Fred Harder (Ninth Ward).

The third member, John Machione (R Ninth Ward), however, informed Tyrrell that he had investigated the matter this summer and had been told by Corporation Counsel Aaron E. Klein that the bills had been paid by mistake. The approval of those bills was not part of the Common Council agenda at its August meeting.

The Republican candidate said, "Any reply by the late acting Democrats should be taken seriously." He said he expected the Corporation Council to tell the residents the bills were paid legally because the total amount of $1,700 for one particular job was paid in three installments on the same day and the city was reimbursed by the urban renewal agency. Tyrrell said this does not make the transaction legal. However, he would advise the city attorney to ask Alderman Donald Quick (chairman of the Laws and Rules Committee) to write a letter to the State Department of Audit and Control asking for an answer.

Tyrrell concluded, "The bills were paid illegally to the Wainscott Sand Corp., 63 West Chestnut Street, Kingston, and the residents of the city have the right to know why the bills were paid by the city clerk. They have the right to know who collected the money and why. They have the right to know who the Wainscott Sand Corporation is."

Singer Puts Priority on Law and Order

KINGSTON—Bernie Singer, Conservative candidate in Kingston's Mayoral race, said today "Law and Order must have top priority among the issues of the campaign."

Friends, Foes . . .

Senate nomination in 1968. The first major Resnick controversy erupted in that 1966 Congressional race, the famed Luni adoption case.

Resnick came to the assistance of the Luni, who wanted to adopt Beth Luni, their blonde, blue-eyed foster child. The courts had ruled that the Lunis could not adopt the child because of certain ethnic differences between the Lunis and the child. That case received nationwide publicity and was considered a factor in Resnick's narrow victory over Fish.

UR, Farm Bureau, Navy. In the summer of 1967, Resnick conducted a Congressional investigation of the Urban Renewal situation in the city of Kingston. That investigation eventually led to the resignation of the agency's executive director and the entire board in the fall of '67.

Resnick also became involved in a one-man fight against the American Farm Bureau, an organization which he charged with taking unfair advantage of its tax exempt status to make millions of dollars.

Later in the year 1967, Resnick took up the case of Navy Lt. Commander Marcus Arnheiter who had been relieved of his command in Vietnam for certain irregularities, as charged by the Navy.

In 1968, Resnick decided to run for the United States Senate on the Democratic ticket. Denied his party's nomination at the convention, he went to a primary.

Resnick continued to support the Johnson position on Vietnam during the primary and also leveled attacks at the late Senator Robert F. Kennedy for his opposition to Johnson's Vietnam policy. The combination of Resnick's stand on Vietnam and the death of Sen. Kennedy shortly before Primary Day in 1968 were considered the main factors in Resnick's finishing last in the three man race won by peace candidate Paul O'Dwyer.

Resnick was hospitalized with what was termed "complete exhaustion" after his defeat in June of 1968.

Resnick later made a number of appearances for John Dyson, the Democratic candidate for Congress against Fish and then returned to the business world. The body was shipped home to Ellenville from Las Vegas this afternoon. Funeral services will be Wednesday at 2 p.m. at the Ezrath Israel Cemetery in Wawarsing.

Injured in Fall

While painting his house at 198 East Chester Street shortly before noon on Monday, Raymond J. Schuler apparently slipped and fell from a ladder to the ground. He was taken to Kingston Hospital by Doctors Ambulance. It was reported he suffered a broken right leg and bruises.

Dye Selects Whispell To Manage His Campaign

TOWN OF KINGSTON

Douglas V. Dye, Republican-Conservative candidate for county legislator from the second district, today announced the selection of Kenneth Whispell as his campaign manager.

In accepting the position Whispell, Town of Kingston Republican chairman said, "I feel the residents of the Second Legislative District, and indeed the entire county, are fortunate to have a conscientious and dedicated man like Dye, representing them on the board.

Discussing those issues he considers vitally important to the residents of Ulster County, Dye said of the proposed Ulster County Airport, "It does not appear that a sound analysis of the proposed airport has been done, or that anyone has proven that a genuine need exists for such a facility in this county. Consequently, until more valid reasons are presented for such a project, I will continue to oppose it.

"I am still very much concerned with the tax-assessment in our county. I am convinced that tax mapping and reappraisal can, in the long run, solve this problem, but there is an obvious need for an immediate revamping of the present structure.

The possible reduction of county property taxes was once again raised by Dye, who said that, "by 1970, this county will have an anticipated $2 million in revenue from our sales tax. This money has not been allocated for any county projects, and until something is proven more important I suggest that this money be used in such a way so as to allow considerable reductions in the property taxes Ulster County residents must now pay."

Dye also favors gradual termination of county highway services, of state roads. "At present," Dye said, "County crews plow, sand and salt many of the State roads within Ulster County, at a large financial loss to the County.

"Another problem I have become increasingly aware of is the inadequate parking facilities at the Ulster County Office building. As a possible solution, the Legislature could investigate the properties earmarked for Urban Renewal demolition in the uptown area, which could possibly be purchased reasonably, and would also be in close proximity to the building itself."

Contempt Irks Egan

Majestic--Back to the Court

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON

Democratic Election Commissioner Joseph I. Epstein defied a Supreme Court order Monday and accepted two of three of Gardiner Supervisor George Majestic's petitions to seek reelection.

As a consequence, Attorney John Egan, who represents three Gardiner citizens who object to Majestic's petitions, will take the matter to court once again.

Egan said he will request that Epstein be "punished for the contempt because of his disrespect for a court mandate."

At the meeting of the Board of Elections Commissioners Epstein and Republican Seymour Wein discussed the recent Supreme Court decision of Justice Edward S. Conway which denied Majestic the right to seek the office of town supervisor and county legislator at the same time. Justice Conway subsequently ordered the committee on vacancies for both the Democratic and the Anti-Sales Tax Party to name substitute candidates.

Yesterday the commissioners were in receipt of three envelopes from the vacancy committees naming Majestic the candidate for supervisor on both the Democratic and Anti-Sales Tax tickets and for county legislator on the Anti-Sales Tax ticket.

Werbalowsky voted to reject all three certificates in view of the Supreme Court order but Epstein accepted the two naming Majestic as supervisor and county legislator.

Epstein said that he felt that since the envelopes were marked "one," "two" and "three," that fact gave one priority over the other.

Since the commissioners were split in their decision, the two certificates were accepted as filed.

Egan said today that he anticipates securing a show cause order in Supreme Court which would be referred back to Judge

Conway, who is now presiding in Troy. He maintains that Epstein's action is in complete contradiction with the Supreme Court edict.

He says further that "under the orderly American process" anyone taking exception to a Supreme Court ruling "appeals the decision through the courts" rather than ignoring a mandate. It is also anticipated that Egan will also name Majestic and the members of the committees on vacancies in his request for punishment.

The Gardiner Democratic Committee on Vacancies includes John T. Casey, Frank Tantillo and Thomas Tavis. The Anti-Sales Tax Committee on Vacancies includes Della Watt, John Bonagura and Henry Ganzer.

Both committees, in letters to the Board of Elections termed Judge Conway's decision "un-constitutional."

Marbletown Group Retains Lawyer for Zoning Fight

By SHANE CROSBY

STONE RIDGE

Louis A. DiDonna, the Kingston lawyer who battled zoning in Stone Ridge for the Marbletown Businessmen's Association in March, is being retained again by the Stone Ridge group to fight the revised Zoning Ordinance.

Vernon Stoutenburgh, a member of the association, said today DiDonna is being retained by the businessmen to spearhead "the defeat of the passage of the revised Zoning Ordinance."

The association of more than 100 businessmen challenged the extent of change in the "revised" ordinance over the ordinance presented in March, saying the changes "can be counted on one hand."

Stoutenburgh, acting as a spokesman for the association, said the businessmen are angered at the way in which the Marbletown Zoning Commission is presenting its revised ordinance. The ordinance will be aired at a final public hearing

Oct. 16 in the Marbletown School.

Stoutenburgh called on the town's residents to attend the hearing, scheduled for 8 p. m., and also to a Businessmen's meeting Thursday at 8 p. m. at the Stone Ridge Firehouse to hear of the association's plans.

The spokesman said the association questioned advance publicity given the first hearing of the revised plan held Sept. 17. Stoutenburgh said little notice

Kiwanis Schedules A Mayoral Debate

KINGSTON

Harry Hines, the newly elected president of Kingston Kiwanis Club, announced today that a debate between all three mayoral candidates is scheduled for Kiwanis' regular luncheon Oct. 16.

Hines said, "Because of the interest in this year's mayoral campaign, the Kingston Kiwanis Club is pleased to host a program that will feature the three candidates—Francis R. Koenig, Bernie Singer and James Tyrrell.

Len Cane, executive director of the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce, will be moderator of the program which is expected to last 45 minutes.

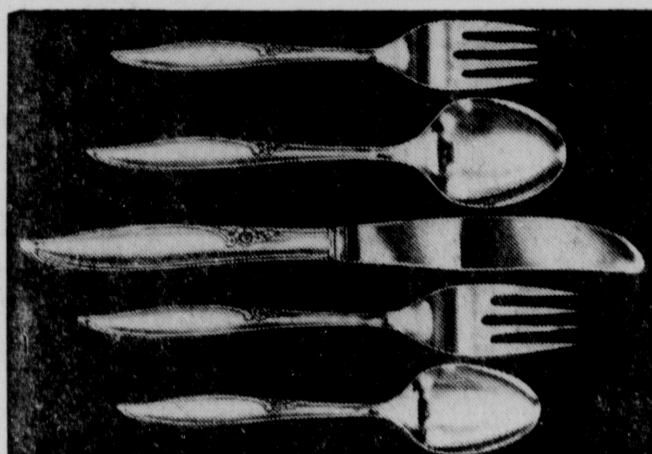

Since this is a regular Kiwanis luncheon with limited seating, it is not open to the public.

Black Candidate Favorite In Atlanta Primary

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Despite bitter infighting among Negro leaders, the first black candidate for mayor of Atlanta in this century was one of the favorites in a municipal primary today.

Gov. Lester Maddox predicted that Negro educator Horace E. Tate would finish first in the mayoral field of seven. If none gets a majority, which is virtually certain, a runoff election among the top two will be held Oct. 16.

Tate said Monday he had been forced to hire bodyguards because of anonymous threats. A group of Negroes opposing him asserted they had been subjected to personal attacks.

A turnout of about 150,000 voters was expected in the nonpartisan primary.

The black community has about 40 per cent of the registered voters.

Mayor Ivan Allen Jr., a Democrat who is stepping down after two four-year terms, said the waning days of the campaign had seen a shift of Negro votes to Tate.

Tate, in his report of threats, said: "Apparently somebody is out to keep me from winning at all costs."

Top contenders with Tate in the tight race are Vice Mayor Sam Massell and Aldermen Rodney Cook and G. Everett Millican.

State Sen. Leroy R. Johnson, speaking for a Negro group supporting Massell, told a news conference that he and his companions weren't blaming Tate for attacks against them.

But he added: "We do know that there is a group supporting Dr. Tate that is attempting to silence any Negro who wishes to speak out for, and vote for, any candidate other than Dr. Tate."

Red Hook Sets Fire Week Plan

Ammo Sales--Key Data Retained

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The offered by Sen. Wallace F. Bennett, R-Utah, and co-sponsored by 46 senators—almost half the Senate—will retain the law's requirement that a seller of ammunition record the name, age and address of the buyer of .22 caliber ammunition.

HEW Shifts on School Aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The ning steps to desegregate and Nixon administration restored federal fund eligibility to two segregated Mississippi school districts several weeks after Vice President Spiro T. Agnew angrily charged they should not be denied hurricane disaster aid.

The two are Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School Districts and Stone County schools. A spokesman for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) Office for Civil Rights said Bay St. Louis and Stone County both are beginning steps to desegregate and intend to complete desegregation by next fall.

Mississippi has informed the U.S. Office of Education 25 school districts will file applications for disaster aid. They have 90 days from Aug. 28 to submit their requests. Few have done so to date.

"All the districts are being asked to submit applications, whether they are in compliance (with the civil rights law) or not, and they will be handled the same, up to the point of payment," said a disaster aid official.

"Then it is out of our hands."

He said the ultimate decision probably would be made in the HEW comptroller's office.

An administration spokesman told UPI negotiations already are under way with two other districts damaged by Hurricane Camille — Piquette Municipal Separate and Lumberton Line Consolidated. Both have been ineligible for federal funds because of Johnson administration rulings they were segregated.

But registration will not be required for most ammunition for shotguns and rifles. Originally, .22 caliber ammunition—accounting for 70 per cent of all ammunition sold—was to have been exempted.

But Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., chief author of the Gun Control Act of 1968 and the chairman of the Senate's juvenile delinquency subcommittee, and Kennedy, D-Mass., were preparing to fight Bennett's bill.

A .22 caliber bullet killed Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Bennett had attached his proposal as an amendment to a measure extending the interest equalization tax, which expired Sept. 30.

The tax was intended to block the flow of U.S. dollars abroad by making it just as expensive to borrow money in the United States as abroad. The Treasury, anxious to see the tax extended, urged Bennett to modify his ammunition amendment. The amendment threatened to tie the legislation for weeks.

A spokesman for Dodd said he would continue to fight Bennett's amendment, even as redrawn, when it comes before the Senate, possibly Wednesday.

"It was either eliminate the .22 caliber ammunition or face no bill at all this year," Bennett wrote his 46 co-sponsors. He promised to renew the fight to exempt .22 caliber bullets later.

HOW SILLY CAN WE GET?

Mayor Garraghan, elected for two terms on a Democratic-Conservative ticket, has reduced our taxes and will leave office with a substantial surplus.

Mr. Koenig, the Democratic-Liberal candidate, has worked mightily and has come up with a single idea—an Olympic-size swimming pool under a dome (Freeman, Oct. 1). Just what the taxpayers of Kingston need—especially those of us who are trying to get along on a fixed income.

A Liberal is a person who believes in being liberal with the taxpayers' money, and Mr. Koenig is an excellent candidate for the Liberal Party.

But it must come as a shock to most Democrats that their party has chosen to head their ticket a man whose only idea to date has been the construction of an Olympic-size pleasure dome.

Kingston has an annual budget of almost $5,000,000.00, so let's put men in City Hall who have a knowledge and a respect for fiscal responsibility.

Conservatives believe in spending money when necessary—but not for Olympic-sized pleasure domes.

Mrs. Roberta Riel answers your Money and Budget Questions

Question: How does a custodial account differ from a trust account? Mr. W.F.J., Great Barrington, Mass.

Answer: The money in a custodial account belongs to the minor and the income is reportable by him. You, as custodian, are responsible for the use of the money for the minor's benefit. If you have an account in trust for someone, during your lifetime, the money is your's alone, as is also the income. Upon your death, the balance of the account goes to the other person.

Question: May I have more than one custodial account? Mrs. D.I.R., Rosendale, N. Y.

Answer: Yes—You may have one for each of your children or grandchildren and each would be separately insured up to $15,000, under the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, OCTOBER 7, 1969

Joseph Y. Resnick

The flamboyant, short and turbulent political career of Joseph Y. Resnick has ended, snuffed out by his untimely death at the age of 44.

The Ellenville resident, who built a shoestring operation into one of the world's biggest industries, involving TV antennas, entered politics with a crash.

He turned a one-party 28th Congressional District into a two-party district, winning a Congressional seat two consecutive times, in 1964 and 1966.

Resnick's victories, over J. Ernest Wharton and Hamilton Fish Jr. gave hope to the area's Democrats. Prior to Resnick, there was very little.

Resnick's two terms in Congress were lively ones. The outspoken Resnick had more than one confrontation with the Democratic party bosses. Because of a difference of opinion with State Chairman John J. Burns, Resnick turned down a third term as Congressman to seek the nomination for U.S. Senate.

The Ellenville Congressman put his chances squarely on the line by backing Johnson's Vietnam policy and the overall policies of the administration.

After finishing third behind Paul O'Dwyer and Eugene Nickerson, Resnick retired from the political field and started a new business venture in Ellenville.

His only connection with politics occurred several days ago when he endorsed Mayor John V. Lindsay for another term in New York City.

The death of Joe Resnick leaves a big void in the area political ranks. He burst upon the scene with a flourish and left the same way. It may be a long time before another like him comes along.

Newspaper Week

This is National Newspaper Week, an appropriate time to draw every American's attention to his daily dependence on the written word for his knowledge of local, national and international occurrences, the protection of his political freedom and the furtherance of his material well-being.

The written words are the permanent record of news, information and opinion, which are primary factors in crystallizing majority public opinion. Under our form of government this will continue to shape national policy and the kind of country we are to live in. In New York state, more people are buying and reading newspapers than ever before. Over eight million New Yorkers bought daily newspapers last year.

The pen is mightier than the sword but only as long as it retains its freedom. In the United States, the free press, composed of thousands of independent newspapers dedicated to the accurate reporting of the news and free expression of opinion, is the best guarantee that our free society has a future.

October 11 is Newspaperboy Day. The carrier's role is an American tradition and a significant source of our future leaders. These carriers are young businessmen and the deep respect that each one has for his own business helps him to respect all other business enterprises. The ranks of these newspaper carriers would be about the last place in America to look for any imposing number of juvenile delinquents.

S. S. Benefits-Cost Plan

The Nixon administration's Social Security package details how the President's plan, for tying benefits to the cost of living, would work. In the last four years, for instance, when the cost of living index increased successively by at least three per cent, there would have been an increase in benefits each year, for a total of 13.9 in the four years.

The President has suggested a 10 per cent increase in benefits effective April 1, but his own figures support the Democrats' call for a 15 per cent increase effective January 1.

Since the first Social Security benefits were paid in 1940, there have been only six across-the-board increases. In the same nearly 30 years, the cost of living has skyrocketed. For that reason, we think tying the benefits to the cost of living index is both eminently fair and necessary to enable the beneficiary oldsters to subsist on their incomes.

The President said in his message that the automatic benefit increases could be funded without increasing Social Security tax rates as long as the amount of earning that is subject to taxes—both the individual and corporate earnings which pay these taxes—reflects the rising level of wages.

At the same time, the President's proposals call for increasing the present $7,800 taxable wage base to $9,000 beginning in 1972, which is another way of increasing the tax both for employers and workers. The earnings base would be increased every two years thereafter by the percentage that wages go up. So there would be an automatic tax increase more or less to match the automatic benefits increase.

The basic idea is sound and necessary, but we will watch to see what the shrewd types in Congress do with it. They might even improve it.

"Faster! Faster!"

David Lawrence Says Smear Campaign in Press Against Judge Haynsworth

WASHINGTON — What's really behind the opposition that has been manifested in the Senate against the confirmation of Clement H. Haynsworth, Jr., as a justice of the Supreme Court?

The answer is to be found in analyzing closely the political game. Those Senators, for instance, who are fighting the man who has been serving as chief judge of the Fifth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals take their cue from the most part from expressions that have come from the leaders of the AFL-CIO and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and other Negro organizations. The theory appears to be that the rank and file will be convinced that Judge Haynsworth is anti-labor and anti-Negro.

A United Press International poll says that 21 Democrats and eight Republicans thus far are opposed to confirmation, while 31 are for it. There are 40 "undecided," which means really that they hesitate to reveal at this time how they feel.

One of the reasons why the eight Republicans are willing to go on record as against Judge Haynsworth is that they come from populous states. They doubtless think that they have to take into account the situation in the big cities where the Negro and labor votes could make the difference between victory or defeat for them in the elections in 1970 or 1972.

Of the 31 Senators who have told the UPI that they favor

Judge Haynsworth, 14 are Democrats and 17 are Republicans. Most of the Democrats are from the south, and they look askance at the utterances by spokesmen for "civil rights" groups who have come out against Judge Haynsworth.

As for the labor leaders, it is well known that they maintain organizations which do a lot of electioneering in political campaigns and openly boast that they have the backing of a majority in the House of Representatives. They have substantial support in the Senate, too. The AFL-CIO does not hesitate to issue each year a list showing the percentage by which each member has supported the pro-labor side in legislative battles.

On the surface, the main weapon of opposition to Judge Haynsworth is an alleged lack of ethics in sitting on cases which supposedly could affect his financial holdings. Nobody has brought forth any proof of dishonesty or of prejudice related to his possessing of securities. Judge Haynsworth did own some stocks in a company whose principal customer was a defendant in a lawsuit before the court of appeals on which he served, but the significance of this has been exaggerated. A smear campaign has been launched in the press in which several Senators have participated.

It so happens that these charges were once investigated by the late Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy and were considered as no barrier to continuance on the lower court. The American Bar Association also has found nothing wrong in Judge Haynsworth's behavior. But how is the public to make up its mind when the anti-Haynsworth Senators deliberately ignore such findings while making headlines by implying there was dishonesty?

The Senate Judiciary Committee has made a thorough inquiry, and its report will recommend confirmation of Judge Haynsworth. President Nixon has had every fact related to the record of Judge Haynsworth and his personal holdings of securities studied thoroughly and, despite the planted rumors of a withdrawal of the nomination, the White House says that nothing of the sort is contemplated. If the president backed down, he would lose the respect of a huge number of white voters as well as millions of citizens who don't like to see artificially stimulated suspicions and unproved charges of lack of integrity hurt the reputation of an honest man who has been named to be a Supreme Court Justice.

It is obviously unfair for critics to base their opposition on political grounds, including attempts to curry favor with labor unions and "civil rights" organizations. Incidentally, a substantial number of Senators didn't allow such bias to interfere with the confirmation of a Negro lawyer, Thurgood Marshall, or of a former counsel of labor unions, Arthur Goldberg, as Associate Justices of the Supreme Court just a few years ago.

Jack Anderson Says

Barry Shillito Is Known To Everyone Except Nixon

WASHINGTON — President Nixon really should get better acquainted with Barry Shillito, the Assistant Defense Secretary whose name cropped up at the last White House press conference and drew a blank from the President.

"I don't know the gentleman," said Nixon, with a helpless shrug, in answer to a Sarah McClendon poser. Shillito just happens to be the Pentagon's top procurement official, who is responsible for spending more of the taxpayers' money than any other single individual. He is also chief custodian of all military installations, a vast $50 billion empire that costs $2 billion a year simply to maintain.

He has attracted attention in the past for his explanations of why the C-5A cargo plane happened to cost $2 billion more than the estimates and why the Minuteman 2 missile ran $4 billion above the estimates. The amount of these two miscalculations alone would have financed the entire antipoverty program.

More recently, Shillito has given one of his deputies, "Big Ed" Sheridan, a job that he badly bungled eight years ago. As Deputy Assistant Secretary in charge of property and installations, Sheridan presided over the Defense Department's $8 billion family housing program.

He was the sort of civilian manager the brass hats like; he let them run things as they pleased. He spent billions for military housing without bothering to establish a cost accounting system. This meant he had no check on how the local commanders were spending their housing funds.

Lunch at Watergate

He also liked to lunch at the fashionable Watergate Restaurant, sometimes as the guest of housing contractors—although it is against regulations for a government official to accept free lunches from contractors. Sheridan acknowledged to this column that he frequently ate at the Watergate and that "there might have been contractors in the group."

He insisted, however, that he paid for the lunches "as often as the other way around."

In 1961, then Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara became disturbed over Sheridan's operations and appointed a civilian advisory panel to conduct "an intensive reappraisal" of the family housing program. The panel submitted its report, marked "for official use only," on Nov. 15, 1961.

"There is a lack of coordinated program management for family housing," declared the report. "Total, accurate and meaningful cost data for operation and maintenance of family housing are lacking."

"Army and Air Force do not have cost accounting systems specifically for family housing. Effective program management requires the establishment of a cost accounting system which will produce uniform cost data."

Translated, this meant that "Big Ed" Sheridan was botching up his job. Accordingly, responsibility for family housing was removed from his domain. The only reason Sheridan was retained at all, say insiders, was because he had powerful friends on Capitol Hill.

Congressional Intervention
The family housing program improved so dramatically, after its separation from Sheridan, that Defense officials decided to take troop housing away from him, too. This was formally proposed by Cyrus Vance, then Deputy Defense Secretary, in a memo dated June 19, 1967.

The plan was approved and ready to implement by the end of the month. Again, Sheridan had failed to set up a cost accounting system. A June 30, 1967, memo spelled out the transfer of troop housing away from Sheridan and specifically directed his successor to "implement an O & M cost accounting system for troop housing."

This time, Sheridan pulled strings with one of his pals on Capitol Hill, Rep. Robert L. F. Sikes, D-Fla., who handles the appropriations for military construction. The Congressman summoned Sheridan's bosses to his office for a friendly, informal hearing and suggested gently that they ought to review their reorganization plan.

Result: Sheridan was allowed to keep troop housing as part of his Pentagon empire. Of course, he never got around to implementing the cost accounting system, which might have saved the taxpayers a few million dollars but would have irritated the brass hats. "Big Ed" is a nice fellow who doesn't like to rub folks the wrong way.

After the Republican takeover, he worked on Shillito to get his full empire restored. This was finally accomplished a few months ago. Ed Sheridan is now Deputy Assistant Secretary in charge of installations and housing, including family housing. He is free again to take up the mismanagement of family housing where he left off in 1961.

Note: Sheridan assured this column that he not only will keep cost accounting for family housing but will extend it to troop housing. The preparations, he said, are already in the works.

Mid-East Deal?

The secret four-power conferences on the Middle East have produced some heartening results. The Russians have agreed informally, for example, that the Israelis won't have to withdraw from occupied Arab lands until the Arabs make parallel concessions.

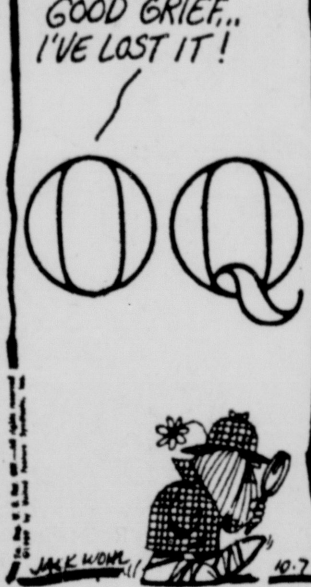

There has also been general agreement that a peacekeeping force will be sent into the Middle East and that it can't be withdrawn except by vote of the U.N. Security Council. Before the last crisis erupted into war in June 1967, the Secretary General pulled out the U.N. peace force at the request of Egypt's President Nasser.

At U.S. insistence, the Russians have also agreed that the terms of a Middle East settlement should be spelled out in writing and that both Arab and Israeli governments should sign it.

Hope is on the rise that the Middle East crisis can be cooled off and that peace, albeit precarious, can be restored.

Henry J. Taylor Says

High Cost of Living Problem

President Nixon has a home-front backlash problem as fully packed with political dynamite as the public's impatience about Vietnam.

It is, of course, the high cost of living. But the new presidential alarm is the White House discovery that the backlash against the high cost of living is growing rapidly.

The White House fellows with all the figures know more people are working than ever — about 78 million. Unemployment is at a level of only 2.8 million. The income of the typical family is still rising. It has been advancing from $8,600 last year to about $9,250 this year.

Many workers are keeping even with, or ahead of, the rise in prices. Millions of others, however, find themselves like the boy on the burning deck whence all had fled but he. About 42 million workers got wage increases last year. These averaged $5.86 per week. But, higher Federal taxes reduced the take-home pay of the average worker by $4.26. And this plus the increased cost of living now leaves him worse off than before.

Moreover, there is an enormous unevenness in the cost-of-living impact, and the White House finds that regardless of the better income statistics the cost resentments are sweeping the country.

President Nixon himself has noted a recent Harris poll which reveals that 60 per cent of the total public feels that income has lagged behind the cost of living. Only 29 per cent believe their income has kept pace.

And among those who make up the resentful 60 per cent the greater number is in the older age group. The least inflamed are those under 30. But this is not the voting population.

Our impressions of youth's voting impact not withstanding, the White House knows that a fundamental phenomenon of American politics is at work. Only about 50 per cent of the eligible voters in the 21-29 bracket have even taken the trouble to register. They constitute by far the largest element in the immense body of eligible voters who simply do not vote.

In contrast, the number of men and women over 65 is increasing at a rate that is making the White House insiders dizzy. And, among those above the age of 30, the cost-of-living resentments—the backlash that President Nixon is feeling—go straight up like the Eiffel Tower.

When I was in Paris recently the police reported that the Eiffel Tower had been sold to suckers at least twice — and by the same crook, who was duly sentenced the second time. Clearly, all but our younger population now feel that way about the inflation. In fact, the Harris poll shows this backlash at 68 per cent among those who are 50 and over.

When the government began deducting Social Security taxes, for example, such citizens thought they would make out all right. Well in the initial 1937-49 period the Social Security tax, shared equally by employers and employees, was a combined $60. In this year 1969 that bill will be $748. The benefits have not been greatly increased but the tax to pay the cost has increased 1,140 per cent!

When Washington whooped it up for Medicare this, too, sounded good. But, piled on top of Medicare exclusions, loopholes, bureaucratic delays and all, Medicare now costs about double the estimated cost originally stated by Washington.

On the day President Nixon took over, the 1960 dollar, which the previous New Frontier-Great Society had inherited, was melting like butter in the sun. It had dropped to 81 cents. The average 1960 pay check of $109 was worth $78.06 after taxes in terms of purchasing power. And even now the Labor Department's Consumer Index shows that it costs nearly $13 for every $10 worth of typical family expenses in the index's 1957-60 base period. And a person on a pension, annuity, life insurance income or any fixed income will find his income, his savings bank nest egg, etc., reduced by one-third in eight years at this rate.

Certainly, Mr. Nixon is under the gun regarding Vietnam but it is clear to him and to White House insiders that he is even more under the gun in the snowballing backlash against the cost of living.

Disputes Fallout, Leukemia Link

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPD)—The State Health Department Monday disputed a claim by a Pittsburgh university professor that radiation fallout from atomic bomb tests has caused increases in leukemia and bone tumors among children in the Albany-Schenectady-Troy area. Dr. Peter Greenwald, director of the department's bureau of cancer control, and Mrs. Sandra Kinch, director of the office of biostatistics contend the conclusions of the study by

Prof. Ernest J. Sternglass, a radiation physicist at the University of Pittsburgh, are faulty. The sternglass study of infant statistics in the tri-city area showed a leveling off at about 19'0 while there was a decline in infant mortality in the United States. His findings were contained in a paper presented last May. Greenwald and Mrs. Kinch contend the findings were biased and his statistical tables contained factual errors. According to the check made by Greenwald and Mrs. Kinch, the number of leukemia deaths in the area between 1940 and 1957 did show an increase. There were six such deaths in 1940-42 among 22,246 births and 13 deaths in 1955-57 among 37,888. This is an increase in leukemia deaths over the period from 27 to 34.3 per 100,000 births. The Health Department experts said this does not indicate an upward trend because the numbers of deaths involved are too small. They explained that one additional death could have a noticeable effect on the statistics. The two state officials said they could find "no evidence for a relationship of fallout to leukemia in Albany, Schenectady or Rensselaer counties."

lack of equipment, most trains were late and many were without lights or air conditioning. The railroad blamed the unions and the unions blamed the railroad for the awful conditions. A management shakeup and improved relationship with the unions helped turn the situation around. And the Budd Co. of Philadelphia sent technicians to New York to repair new cars which had been breaking down due to malfunctioning brake or air conditioning systems. "Only the finest railroad in the country could have made a turnaround in two months," Rockefeller said as he praised the cooperation of the unions. One railroad official conceded that the governor's best-in-the-nation claim might be a bit overblown, but added: "It certainly got everybody off their backs around here."

Mr. Stedje, according to Houle, "was endorsed for two reasons. First and most important of all, the committee felt there was no one in the town in any political party who was more qualified by virtue of his experience, his education, his ability, his integrity, his interest in town affairs, and his willingness to serve his community."

"Second, it was thought that if the Democratic Party did not put up a candidate of its own for the top position, the Republican voters, in fairness to themselves, might be more receptive to giving the Democrats at least a minority voice in the form of a board member who could offer constructive criticism and a fresh viewpoint."

The Democratic Chairman made it clear that "at no time did the former justice solicit the endorsement of the Democratic Party. He accepted," according to Houle, "on the understanding that philosophically he was a Republican and on the basis that his program would be acceptable to the Democratic Party."

Quick Issues Statement on The 51 Per Cent

KINGSTON The letter states that although the 51 per cent amendment went unchallenged from 1923 to 1964, it was never in fact valid for the following reasons:

- The 51 per cent amendment is more stringent than the state law.
- No municipality may enact legislation that supersedes that of the State.

In conclusion, Quick feels that the 51 per cent amendment will offer more protection for the property owner immediately involved with a zoning change as opposed to the State's 50 per cent which includes the entire zoning district.

Quick goes on to say that he will request Senator J. P. Rolison and Assemblyman H. Clark Bell to consider introduction of the 51 per cent amendment in the State Legislature.

Alderman Donald E. Quick (D-Sixth Ward) released the following statement today regarding the 51 per cent amendment to the Kingston Zoning Ordinance.

"I have received a letter from the State Department of Audit and Control in reply to my inquiry concerning their ruling of July 11, 1969.

Blaze Damages Eichler Hotel

KINGSTON Extensive damage was caused by fire this morning to the Eichler Hotel, 41 Railroad Avenue, despite the efforts of firemen from all paid units and four volunteer fire companies in charge of Chief James M. Brett and Deputy Chief Harry Sills.

The fire was discovered and reported to Central Station at 5:55 a.m. by E. K. Cooke, who resides in a second floor apartment of the three-story brick-mercantile building. A box alarm was sounded two minutes later.

When firemen arrived they found a second floor bedroom fully involved in fire and the entire second floor was heavily charged with heat and smoke. Firefighters from Engines 1, 2 and 3 and Trucks 1 and 2, along with men from Wicks Engine and Salvage Company, Excelsior and Wiltwyck units, battled the flames that extended laterally to the living and bedrooms on the second floor.

The flames were brought under control with two 1½-inch hose lines and a 2½-inch pump stream. The third floor was heavily charged with heat and smoke and firemen had to open the roof for ventilation. Water damage was reported to the first floor area.

The probable cause listed on the fire records was careless smoking, it was noted. All fire units were back in service at 9:15 a.m. During the height of the blaze other volunteer fire companies stood by on alert.

Jackie Denies Flipping Fotog

NEW YORK Mrs. Jackie Onassis denied flipping a news photographer who attempted to record her exit from a New York City movie theater showing the film, "I Am Curious (Yellow)." The incident occurred Sunday evening at the entrance to a midtown movie house, Mel Finklestein, New York Daily News photographer said that the 40-year-old widow of President Kennedy deftly dumped him with a judo throw.

Mrs. Onassis made the denial through her former press secretary, Nancy Tuckerman. According to Miss Tuckerman, "I congratulated Mrs. Onassis, told her I thought it was a neat trick. But, she said she hadn't done it."

Fellow news photographer, Anthony Casale who was on the assignment, backed up Finklestein's account of the incident.

Reports Boat Stolen

Theft of a 12-foot aluminum rowboat from the Ashokan Reservoir in West Hurley, was under investigation today by the sheriff's deputies. The boat, a Sea King painted maroon with a permit number 523, was discovered missing at 4:15 p.m. Oars and other equipment also were missing. The boat belongs to Ralph Lefever of 221 Tremper Avenue, according to Sgt. Raymond Davis.

Transfer Boy, 5, To Rochester; Survived Fatafs

KINGSTON A 5-year-old boy who survived a double-fatal traffic accident on the State Thruway, was transferred Monday by Fatum's Ambulance from Benedictine Hospital to a hospital in Rochester. He resides in that city with his parents.

Mark Davis, of 130½ Clifton Avenue, Rochester, was injured Aug. 15, when the car in which he was riding crashed into the rear of a tractor-trailer about two miles north of Kingston. The driver of the car, Willie Davis, 33, of 85 Bronson Avenue, Rochester, and the Davis boy's sister, Lillian, 14, were killed in the crash. His mother and an older sister were injured.

The truck was operated by Paul H. Collins, 31, of Ganewoort.

Boy Serious, Father Cited After Accident

WOODSTOCK A 9-year-old boy was seriously hurt and his father was injured at 12:10 p.m. Monday when the car in which they were riding left Wittenberg road and crashed head-on into a tree.

Daniel Thomas, 44, of 21 First Avenue, New York City, was cited by Trooper G. R. Allen of the Kingston Zone Headquarters for driving while intoxicated. Arraigned before Town Justice Rudolf Baumgarten, Thomas pleaded innocent and hearing was adjourned until Oct. 24.

Thomas' son, Peter, who resides with his mother on Wittenberg Road, suffered severe lacerations of the face and mouth, contusions of the head and face, and internal injuries, according to a report of Trooper Van Allen. Thomas sustained lacerations of the face and contusions of the right leg and head.

The injured were taken to Kingston Hospital by Doctors Ambulance. The boy was admitted for further treatment.

Van Allen reported the car was northbound when it failed to negotiate a turn and veered off the right side of the road. Thomas overcorrected the course of the vehicle and it crossed the pavement and hit the tree. The boy was thrown against the windshield.

Flames Damage County Home

KERHONKSON Twenty volunteer firefighters from the local units battled flames that extensively damaged a house on Foordmore Avenue in this community Monday night.

Fire Chief Martin Somers said a passerby discovered fire in the residence owned by Bruce Cyr and summoned the fire companies. Somers reported that the fire apparently started in a waste paper basket in the kitchen of the frame house and extended up through partitions to the roof.

The Vatican Speaks Out

Starvation Exists in World of Abundance

In an unprecedented series of articles, through his distinguished Vatican emissaries, Pope Paul VI speaks out on the moral issues of today: the pill and population, the breakup of the family, love, sex and marriage. These exclusive articles were prepared at the request of this newspaper to answer the questions arising from the reaction of the Pope's encyclical on regulation of birth.

This article, the seventh of eight, deals with the obligation of a married couple to themselves and to society and mankind.

THE MYTH OF THE POPULATION EXPLOSION

By Dr. Colin Clark

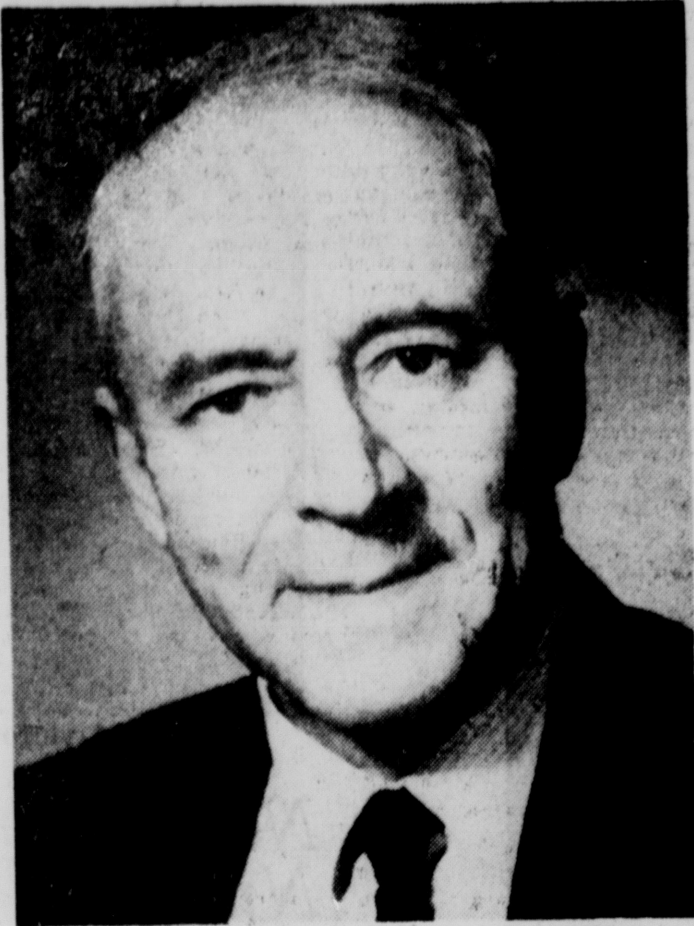

Professor specializing in Economics and Population, Oxford, England

There is hunger and malnutrition in the world, but to nothing like the extent of half or two-thirds of the world population. Most of it is due to Communist misgovernment, and in India, where there is enough food to go round, but the lower castes are systematically kept hungry and denied economic opportunities. Agricultural production has been advancing faster than population, not only in the advanced countries, but in almost every country in the world, to the point where there is considerable anxiety about being able to sell agricultural produce.

These anxieties must now be greatly accentuated by the breeding of IR8 rice in the Philippines, and the new varieties of short-stemmed wheat from Mexico, which have shown themselves capable of being grown in most parts of Asia, and which even the most cautious agricultural scientists certify as capable of giving yields far higher than have been seen in the world before. The menace of world food shortage (which had been exaggerated in any case) is over, and the world is now faced with the very different problem of a prospective glut of agricultural produce.

Neither is it permissible to say that the poor countries would like to buy these surpluses of food, but lack any money to do so. Over the last decade the money which the developing countries have been earning from their exports has been rising at the rate of 4.5 per cent, per year, much faster than their population, quite apart from the foreign aid which they have been receiving, while world prices of food have been falling. In fact, the developing countries have preferred to spend most of this large increase in the money at their disposal on commodities other than food; and they know their own needs best.

Most people approach this subject under grave misconceptions about the facts. It is not their fault, because they have to listen to repeated statements, often by people who should know better, about supposed world hunger. The widely circulated statement, still believed by some, that two-thirds of the world's population is actually hungry, is based on simple errors, not only in the estimation of physiological requirements, but also in the arithmetical calculations from the available statistics. More recently the World Food and Agriculture Organization lent world's surface is capable of supporting the statement being farmed, although 7½ million square kilometers are suffering from serious malnutrition, though without producing any evidence for it. Eventually, after much delay and evasion, F.A.O. admitted that they defined as large area, some 14½ million square kilometers in all, of cold-temperate country, mostly in Western Europe, Medical evidence would indicate that people who eat as they do are more in danger of overnutrition, rather than constituting the borderline of undernutrition.

But if not now, will we not in the near future be faced with a shortage of agricultural land to feed the world's population? Of course we cannot feed an indefinitely large population; but the limits of agricultural potentiality are such further in the future than is generally supposed. It is no use asking how much space is required to feed each person, until you specify how he is going to eat, and how efficient is the agriculture which supplies him. People eating at North American or Western European standards (and if we ate any more we would probably be endangering our health) need, if good modern agricultural methods are used, about 2,500 meters per head to provide their requirements of agricultural and forest products. The recent tendency to consume more poultry, pork and other meat produced indirectly from grain, rather than from grazing, represents a considerable economy of land.

The land surface of the world (excluding Greenland and Antarctica) measures 131 million square kilometers, of which only 8.6 million are altogether too cold for agricultural use. Truly arid deserts measure 22.6 million square kilometers. A further 20 million square kilometers of semiarid land can be used for grazing and also for occasional agriculture, but we will leave this out in the calculations. The Malthusian doctrine, so widely accepted, is that technical improvements in agriculture may come, but that they are always followed by a growth of population, leaving people no better off than before.

But closer analysis shows that this is, in most cases, the opposite to the truth — population increases generally comes first, and then, usually with great reluctance, people adopt technically more efficient methods because they have to provide for the increased population. The strongest reason for believing that things work this way round is that almost every technical improvement in agriculture involves, in its initial stages, harder and more disagreeable work than the methods previously used. Technical knowledge, in most countries, is available well ahead of the actual adoption of technical improvements.

Africans know about more intensive systems of agriculture, but do not practice them because they are too laborious, until compelled to do so by the growth of population, which must thus be regarded as an economically beneficial factor. We can trace such economic effects of population growth all the way up the scale from primitive hunting and fishing communities, through various crude forms of agriculture, to intensive agriculture with its careful preservation of soil fertility.

Population growth brings advantages in agriculture, but even more marked advantages in industry. These are the reasons why the world which is now going through a "population explosion" is now also going through a far greater "wealth explosion." Throughout the world, with very few exceptions, the rate of advance of production per head during the last two decades has been much higher than it ever was before. The economic facts are perfectly clear to anyone who will look at them; most people prefer not to look at them, but to make up facts which accord with their prejudices.

The economic advantages of being a densely populated country with growing population were perceived as long ago as the 17th century by Sir William Petty, in contrasting the English with the Dutch, their successful naval and commercial rivals. Every industrial country has to pay for very large "indivisibilities": the transport system and harbors, the apparatus of government, the professions and education, which are needed on much the same scale for a densely populated country. The principal source of economic improvement is the ever-increasing sub-division and specialization of industrial processes; but the extent of such specialization is limited by the extent of the market, as was clear to Adam Smith. Erroneous investment decisions, both public and private, are bound to occur in all communities; but their effects can be more rapidly put right under conditions of growing than of stationary populations. Comparisons by Professor Kuznets, the leading authority in this field, of rates of growth of national product per head with rates of growth of population, completely failed to indicate the negative correlation, which would be expected if the Malthusian theory were true. Experience of a number of countries has shown that population growth at rates as high as 3 per cent per annum, where no more agricultural land is available, can be successfully diverted into industry, with still rising productivity.

Population growth also leads to an increase in the rate of savings. It is true that there are more children to be fed. But a rapidly growing population contains relatively fewer old people, and a higher proportion of men in the prime of life, able and willing to save (and without those expectations of legacies which are often destructive of the saving incentive in a country such as this). This is not merely a theoretical proposition. In India the rate of saving (Reserve Bank calculations) has risen from 5 per cent of net national income in the early 1950s to 8 per cent in recent years. The per head supply of industrial products in India is rapidly improving — it is Indian agriculture whose output is only just keeping pace with population growth. There are signs, however, that India is now giving agriculture some of the attention which it should have received two decades ago.

If checking population were the way to enrich a country (this was the unanswerable question which the French delegate, Professor Sauvy, asked the World Population Conference in 1954), then France should be the richest country in the world, for France began family limitation about 1780. In fact, two leading French economic historians, Marczewski and Combe, blame France's comparatively late start in industrialization upon the lack of population pressure (in comparison with England) in the early 19th century.

Population limitation has political consequences too. Whether we like it or not, the countries which count most in world affairs are those with large populations — China, India, Russia, the United States. The decline in the relative importance in world affairs of Britain, France and Germany is largely due to the fact that they have limited their populations while other countries have continued to expand.

Family limitation may be, in some cases, an urgent need for the family concerned; and there are morally legitimate means by which it can be brought about. But where the need is not urgent, parents who limit their families, however morally legitimate their means, are doing something to weaken their country's political and economic future; and parents who enlarge their families are strengthening their country and civilization.

Population growth, however strange and unwelcome some of its consequences may appear at the time, must be regarded, I think as one of the instruments of Divine Providence, which we should welcome, not oppose. Its consequences, we have seen, have in the long run been beneficial; indeed without it civilization would not have come into existence, and mankind would still have been living as primitive hunters or herdsmen. If we follow our Creator's wishes, instead of trying to oppose them, we may find that He has in preparation for the human race a much higher, more productive and scientific, and more cultured civilization than any which has gone before, and, moreover, a civilization covering the whole world, not limited, as have been previous civilizations, to a comparative few.

MRS. JOSEPH A. COLAO JR.
(Studio Chazelle)Wedding Vows Taken
In Bordeaux, France

BORDEAUX, FRANCE—Announcement was made today of the marriage of Miss Jocelyne-Claire Bernard, 194 Rue Leo Saignat, Gironde, France, daughter of Mrs. Renee Bernard and the late Fabius Bernard, to Lt. Joseph A. Colao Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Colao Sr., of 142 Marius Street, Kingston, at St. Eulalie Church, Bordeaux, France.

L'abbé de Traversey at St. Eulalie's Church officiated at the double ring ceremony. Traditional wedding selections were provided. White and pink floral arrangements decorated the altar.

Given in marriage by her godfather, Rozei Cailland, the bride wore a satin gown featuring a long lace train accented with pink. She carried a bouquet of pink roses accented with white ribbons.

Micheline Larrat, cousin of the bride, of Bordeaux, France was honor attendant in a white satin gown. She carried white lydiams and pink roses.

Marjorie Ann Colao of Kingston, sister of the bridegroom; Anne Marie Lacaze and Claire Lamoot, both of Bordeaux, France, served as attendants. They wore full length white gowns trimmed with velvet ribbon and light pink roses. They carried bouquets of pink roses and white lydiams.

Isabelle Attane served as flower girl in a white full length gown. She carried a small bouquet of pink roses.

Witnesses were Robert Gillen of Kingston and Gerard Dominique of Paris, France, brother-in-law of the bride. Ushers were Frederic Tournebise and Gerard Crouzillat, both of Bordeaux, France; Viktors Kitta of Weisbaden, Germany; and Pascal Tournebise, Jean Lamoot, cousin of the bride, served as ringbearer.

A banquet was held at Hotel Peyberland. Approximately 100 guests attended from France, Germany and the U.S.

Mr. and Mrs. Colao Jr. took a months wedding trip to Barcelona, Madrid, Spain.

The bride is a graduate from Sacred Heart Academy in Bordeaux, France, the Law University of Bordeaux, and is employed by U.S. Air Force as secretary at Weisbaden, Germany. Her husband, an alumnus of Kingston High School and Rutgers University, New Brunswick, N.J., is a lieutenant in the U.S. Air Force. He is stationed at Weisbaden, Germany where they will reside.

Among those who attended the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Colao Sr. of Kingston, Colonel and Mrs. Henry Hubbs; Major Philip Levy; Lieut. and Mrs. Jean Salles, deputy of Bordeaux, congressman; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cussens, ex-vice consul of USA in Bordeaux; Mr. and Mrs. Loguens; Mr. Charles Espezel, of the Mayor's cabinet.

HOMEcoming QUEEN—Miss Dianna Clark, (right), 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Clark of River Road, Port Ewen was selected Kingston High School Homecoming Queen Saturday, Oct. 4 at KHS and Linton High School football game in Dietz Stadium. The Queen reigned at the dance held the same evening at Kate Walton Field House, Kingston. Pictured with Miss Clark is Miss Julie McClearn, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl McClearn Jr. of Hallihan Hill, Kingston, who served as the queen's maid of honor. Both young ladies are seniors at KHS. (Freeman photo by Krub).

MRS. VICTOR H. HERDMAN
(Studio 54)Neuwirth - Herdman
Nuptials Announced

Miss Mary Neuwirth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russel D. Carpenter, Gunshop Road, Plattkill, was married on September 27 to Victor Herbert Herdman, son of Mrs. Elizabeth Herdman of Kingston and Herbert Herdman of Poughkeepsie.

The double ring ceremony in Our Lady of Fatima Church in Plattkill was performed by the Rev. Michael Pascual. A buffet reception took place at the Plattkill firehouse.

The bride wore a gown of white silk organza designed with a sabrina neckline, long fitted sleeves and an A-line skirt with a detachable chapel length train. Her veil of illusion was shirred to a stylized headpiece of silk leaflets accented with seed pearls. She carried white baby roses with fern.

Miss Christine Ballou of Kingston was maid of honor. She wore an arctic blue imported chiffon polyester gown with an empire effect, styled with self-color satin ribbon tapering from a center bow to an accordion pleated skirt. The gown featured long chiffon sleeves with ruffles at cuffs and neckline. Bride-maids were Miss Pamela Olive of Mount Marion and Miss Alison Lahl of Kingston. They wore similar gowns to that of the maid of honor, one in shocking pink and one avocado green.

Richard Klomps of Kingston was best man. Ushers were Kenneth Knapp and Ralph McCumber, both of Kingston.

The bride is a graduate of Wallkill Central Schools and Ulster County Community College, and is serving with the U.S. Air Force, stationed at Minot, North Dakota.

After a trip to Cape Cod, the couple will live in Minot, North Dakota.

Hints from Heloise

By HELOISE

Dear Heloise: I wonder if it has ever occurred to your readers that clothes hampers can be used for a lot of things besides storing soiled laundry?

Here are just a few ideas I had for putting extra ones to good use:

Storing towels and washclothes, extra bed linens, socks and underwear, toys, things that need mending or that ironing you just aren't ready to tackle yet.

And they come in so many different sizes and colors that you can find one to match most any room in the house.

I think I'll buy a big one in which to put all the clippings I've saved from reading your hints—ha!

Heloise Fan

And I'm a fan of yours for giving our readers some more uses for these hampers.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Over the years, I have always dreaded the job of removing the thin membrane on the outer edge of liver, until I hit on the idea of doing it while the liver is frozen!

Make a small cut and grab it between thumb and knife. It peels away paper thin and also saves much of the liver that is usually cut away with the membrane if it's thawed.

A Reader

Dear Heloise:

The doorknob on our bathroom door banged against the wall whenever it was opened.

So I took a cotton-filled powder puff, ripped one side open, put it over the knob and sewed it closed.

No more noise now when anyone gets up at night to use the bathroom.

Mrs. C. Magarell

Dear Heloise:

Don't you just hate to put out all that money for a diaper bag when there is so much more you need for babies?

Try one of the insulated vinyl picnic bags. They come in bright colors and have a zipper top.

I've found they hold as much as the largest diaper bags and can usually be bought for a dollar or less.

Wenda McNew

Dear Heloise:

If your lunch pail won't stay fastened, use those tiny plastic clips from bread or apple bags.

Fasten the bucket as usual, then put the plastic fasteners in the snap loops. It won't come open... honest!

Mrs. A. Haney

Letter of Love

Dear Heloise:

Know something? You are a pleasant conversation-starter when people who aren't acquainted get together at a luncheon.

Mrs. E. W.

And YOU know something? You started my day off just right with those kind words!

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Here are some of my uses for old plastic tablecloths!

I just re-covered a TV pillow and a cushion for our baby's high chair.

I've also made placemats out of them by crocheting or sewing edging around pieces cut in ovals or rectangles.

Great, too, for children's painting aprons.

Ernestine K.

Dear Heloise:

When giving a bridal or baby shower, have the list of those invited with their addresses on it, and assign it to someone at the shower.

As the guest of honor opens each gift, have the person write the gift and description on the list alongside the correct name.

Then when the bride writes her thank-you notes, all she needs is the list with names, addresses and the gift description.

This way, there is less trouble for her and no chance of mixing up the cards and gifts.

Gerry

Dear Heloise:

I've discovered a marvelous way to take care of that awful nuisance of turning electric clocks back when we go off daylight saving time.

Instead of running through the house to every room and doing all that finger-tiring work, my feeble brain finally came up with the idea of pulling the master electric switch for just that one hour. Then everything is back as it should be.

CACKLEBIRD ROASTER—There's a different look and a different taste about the Cacklebird roaster, being introduced in this area. It has broad plump breasts and meaty legs; it is extra juicy and flavorful. Look for the new roasters in the supermarket poultry freezer.

Roasters Make Comback

Prior to the middle thirties, a big beautiful roaster was the most impressive food to grace the Sunday dinner table. More than three decades later, the roaster makes a comeback.

Now being introduced in this area is a top quality frozen line of specially bred and processed poultry products called Cacklebird.

Top of the line is the Cacklebird roaster. It is a new strain of chicken with plump broad breasts and meaty thighs and golden yellow skin color. The roaster is frozen at the processing plant and packed in heavy-duty protective plastic bag printed with complete suggestions for cooking. The giblets are wrapped separately and packed outside the bird, allowing the bird to be roasted frozen without the usual thawing to remove the giblets. The Cacklebird roaster weighs from 4 to 6 pounds and is priced at about 69 cents a pound.

In addition to the roaster, the Cacklebird line includes a 7 to 9 pound frozen capon and these heat-and-serve specialties: fried chicken, chicken chops (fried meaty sections of chicken wings), fried plump chicken chunks and boil-in-the-bag chicken stroganoff, chicken a la king, chicken cacciatore, chicken & noodles.

Full suggestions for cooking the new frozen roasters and capons are printed on the bags and, of course, all the fully processed products include full instructions. The recipes given here incorporate one of the many Cacklebird glazes developed in the Best Foods kitchens.

Roaster L'Orange

1 teaspoon tarragon leaves
1 cup sugar
1/4 cup red wine vinegar
2 cups chicken stock
4 peppercorns
Salt
1 1/2 teaspoons corn starch
2 tablespoons water
Orange, sliced (optional)
Sprinkle cavity of bird with with chicken. Garnish platter with orange slices, if desired.

Giblets from 1 (5-pound) roaster
2 1/2 cups water
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1/2 cup margarine
1 cup finely chopped onion
1 cup uncooked rice (not pre-cooked)
1/4 cup toasted chopped almonds
2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley
1/2 teaspoon pepper

Cook gizzard, heart and neck in water and salt in a saucepan. Simmer 15 minutes. Add liver; cook 5 minutes. Melt margarine in skillet. Add onion and rice. Cook over low heat, stirring occasionally, until onion and rice are lightly browned, about 10 minutes. Discard neck. Chop giblets and add with cooking liquid to rice mixture. Cover and cook over low heat, stirring occasionally, until liquid is absorbed and rice is tender, about 15 minutes. (If more water is needed, add 1 tablespoon at a time.) Lightly mix in almonds, parsley and pepper. Makes 3 cups to serve with roast.

Note: May be used as a roaster stuffing if desired. Makes enough for a 5 pound bird.

Simple yet Effective

A set of grace and beauty that adheres to the tradition of the single solitaire and a plain gold wedding ring. Its only departure from the classic conception is the gentle curving of the design and the soft, soft texture of the finish.

Doing the Right Thing

By ELIZABETH L. POST

Boy Friend Welcome Visitor

Dear Mrs. Post: A visit to my girl friend is an overnight trip. Her mother has always invited me to stay in their home and I have accepted, taking a present with me. Is it all right for me to impose on their hospitality every few weeks, or should I stay in a motel? Since I do know the family pretty well and because I have already stayed there several times, am I being unnecessarily concerned as long as the invitations continue? — Jack

Dear Jack: Suggest to your girl friend that you feel you may be imposing and could stay at a motel sometimes. She will know better than you how her family feels. I suspect, from the continuing invitations, that your visits are welcome, and if they are issued warmly, you may certainly continue to accept them.

Man Enters Empty Apartment First

I am a single girl living alone. Is it proper, upon approaching the door, to hand my key to my boy friend and expect him to open the door? (He is coming in with me.) I had always thought that it was the man's place to open all doors for a woman. After all, you never know who may be lurking behind that door.

My boy friend disagrees. He says that it is my apartment and that he has no business unlocking and opening my door. Besides, he doesn't want to be the first to be hit over the head by any thieves. Is my boy friend right, or is he just a coward? — Rhonda

Dear Rhonda: I believe I'd try to find another boy friend if I were you! Any man who would send his girl into an empty apartment ahead of him so that she could be the one to run into an intruder, isn't worth inviting in. Either he should take your key when you offer it and unlock and open the door, or he should allow you to unlock it and then open it himself. The man should step in first and hold the door open for the girl to follow.

Shower for Three Month Old Twins

Dear Mrs. Post: When my neighbor was pregnant I couldn't give her a shower, but I would like to now since she has never had one. She has eight children and is 25. Would it be proper even though the babies are 3 months old? — Brenda

Dear Brenda: It is a bit unusual to give a baby shower three months after the birth, but any girl who has eight children before she is 26 could surely use the gifts.

Engaged?

CONGRATULATIONS!

Yours! This Lovely Ruby and Crystal Wedding Bowl is our engagement gift to you with our very best wishes for a life of health, happiness and prosperity. Legend has it that the original wedding bowl was placed before the bride and groom and the wedding guests filed past while filling it with money. We, of course have lost track of this colorful custom but the wedding bowl persists as a unique entity... only now, it is given as a centerpiece and treasured as a memento. Our replica of a Colonial antique is yours without any obligation. It comes in and get yours; it's gift-wrapped and ready. We are the romantic business of making homes and it is our continuing pleasure to place at least one piece of our home furnishings in every new home. We would be delighted to give you yours!

Present this ad at any time prior to wedding date. Also with our compliments... booklets on the care of your furniture and a sample bottle of Guardsman furniture polish.

Narcotics Educational Center Under Study

ELLENVILLE
A proposal to establish a "narcotics educational center" is currently being considered cooperatively, by the Wawarsing Town Board, the Ellenville Village Board and the Ellenville School Board.

The proposal made by the fledgling Narcotics Guidance Council, which was formed earlier this year to combat the growing problem of narcotic usage in this southern Ulster community.

According to Mrs. Youtha Franklin, chairman of the council the "educational center", to be located in a storefront in Ellenville, would be the nerve center for a community-wide effort to dissuade young people from indulging in drug usage.

The proposal came up briefly at the Ellenville Village Board meeting here, Monday night, when Frank Sahler, Democratic Party candidate for Councilman on the Wawarsing Town Board, indirectly plugged the proposed center by urging the board to take a more active role in combating drug activity.

"This problem is getting more and more acute every day," Sahler said, "and if the problem is going to be licked then you are going to have to take the lead."

At this point Ellenville Mayor, Robert Dowling explained that the Narcotics Guidance Council's proposal was to be considered by the board in executive session. Dowling went on to say that the extent of the board's commitment would probably be announced later this week, following consultations with the town and school boards.

However, Dowling went on to say that he was equally concerned about establishing more effective law enforcement in the area of narcotics control, noting that arrests are often turned back by lenient courts.

"Anyone in the police department can go out now and identify the pushers," Dowling said, "but because of the courts they have to be very careful about it."

There was also some disagreement about the actual extent of the narcotics problem in Ellenville.

Dowling said that while the problem was acute there appeared to be no indications that it was increasing. However, Trustee, Walter Grey, the lone Democrat on the five man board, said after the meeting that it was getting "worse and worse."

Earlier this year, during a lecture in Ellenville, Ulster County Special Investigator

Thomas Mayone said that the Ellenville area was second largest community in the county for drug traffic. New Paltz is considered to be the prime area for drug traffic.

Mrs. Franklin feels that of even more urgency than the extent of drug usage was the question "what kind of drugs are being used?" She explains that with marijuana becoming increasingly inaccessible, young people are beginning to turn to harder drugs.

Rhinebeck's Budget Nears Its Completion

RHINEBECK
The Town of Rhinebeck administration is still working on its proposed 1970 budget with a goal of holding a public hearing before the Nov. 4 elections.

The subject was broached in a letter to the regular meeting of the Board last week from Democratic candidate for supervisor Paul Gmeiner, asking that the budget be aired before the election in order to give the public a good look at what to expect.

The statement read, in part, that "there would be greater interest and awareness of town money affairs if the budget were published by Oct. 1 and the budget hearing held before Oct. 15."

He went on to cite examples of town and school boards which follow this plan, bringing out the opinion that "especially in election years should the voters have the chance to scrutinize . . . the budget."

Gmeiner's letter then indicated several supposed instances of "manipulating the budget for political purposes" in the past, by misrepresentation of the mortgage tax and "finding" lost money in bookkeeping errors.

"Since four out of five Town Board members are not running for reelection and since we have a lame duck supervisor, there should be plenty of time to get the budget ready," he added.

Similar requests by the minority party have not been followed up by the Republican administration in years past, but GOP supervisor candidate William Allen and Councilman Robert Walcott gave their blessings to the project.

The Community Chest and You

Gateway Looks to Future

As a member agency of counseling regarding work-world demands, budgeting, grooming, and job placement. Yes, a gift to Community ahead to meet the intense challenges of the future in rehabilitation.

Drill press in the machine operator training area.

Through its affiliation with Community Chest and other agencies, Gateway has grown to be a comprehensive rehabilitation center dedicated to the training and rehabilitation of the handicapped person, regardless of the severity of type of disability.

Step one of the program is evaluation where, in a testing situation, a person's attitudes and basic skills are assessed to find out what training area is best suited to his needs. After this, the individual may pursue any of a multitude of training programs.

At Gateway, all programs are carried out in an actual work environment and include classes in areas such as domestic training, clerical skills, vocational training in machine operation, power sewing, bench assembly, salvage, inspection, and packaging.

The supporting services which facilitate and strengthen the vocational service of Gateway include, depending upon the need of the client, individual therapy, group therapy, and

An estimated 22.2 million Americans are limited in some degree by chronic health conditions.

Among these handicapped men and women we can find every conceivable skill and talent often being wasted for lack of rehabilitation, training and job placement. Many have knowledge and experience that can, and should be utilized to benefit themselves and their families, and to make them self-supporting and contributing members of society.

That is the goal of Gateway — the reason Gateway exists — to help handicapped and disabled people to become self-supporting members of society; to help them and use the abilities they have and to earn income and enjoy life as normally as possible.

Gateway is a non-profit rehabilitation and training center founded in 1957. Since its incorporation, it has aided many hundreds of physically and mentally handicapped persons to rehabilitate themselves and learn the skills necessary for employment.

In addition Gateway operates as a sheltered workshop, enabling men and women whose limitations do not permit regular employment, to help earn their own living.

Sheltered workshops are exactly what the name implies: workshops where the handicapped work and learn, guided by trained managers and supervisors.

Working at jobs for industry, occupied in useful and constructive ways, they progress at the pace suited to each one individually. They handle assembly-line work and many other jobs that give them confidence, companionship, and the precious gift of a useful occupation.

With workshop training, the handicapped no longer battle the discouraging circumstances of being always a little behind their friends. Now they experience the pleasure of meeting demands that are within their capabilities.

They may even be able to develop to the stage of entering outside industry as a valuable unit in the economy of the country and the community. Most importantly, perhaps, sheltered workshops offer a feeling of usefulness to even the very severely handicapped.

Financial support of this year's Community Chest campaign now in progress provides the operational funds for Gateway and 14 other worthwhile agencies. Further, the end results are also rewarding to the contributor.

Recent figures released by the state show that the cost of rehabilitating a disabled person will be returned to the community, from income taxes alone, within approximately five years. During his estimated average working life, a rehabilitated person will return, in total income taxes paid, over 12 times the cost of cases services provided to him. Sullivan was quick to point out too, that persons undergoing training at Gateway are paid for the work they do.

John T. Sullivan is executive director of Gateway and William P. Edelmuth, a former Kingston mayor serves as president.

Red Hook Dem Chairman Blames 'Money Mess' on GOP

By TIM SCHUSTER

RED HOOK
Walter G. Bayer, Town of Red Hook Democratic chairman, today lashed out at what he called Matt Sipperley's and the "Republican machinery's damn the taxpayer" attitude.

"I call on Matt Sipperley, county representative for the Red Hook-Rhinebeck District, to give a true and accurate account of his performance in actions which have caused the taxpayers of Red Hook an ever greater burden to bear," he said.

About the Dutchess County Airport "mess," Bayer said, "It was Sipperley who voted to spend the $195,000 of our tax money, not Rep. Economou (Dem. minority leader).

"The Republicans were in control of county government when the airport became operational, and it was a mess when the Democrats came into control for two short years," explained Bayer.

"During that time a valid contract was signed with Dutchess County Aviation, but the Republicans never honored it and immediately began disruptive shenanigans to prevent it from being successful," he continued.

"I strongly urge Rep. Sipperley to give the people of Red Hook-Rhinebeck an honest account of the closed door negotiations that took place prior to a 'settlement,'" said Bayer. He charged Sipperley with being part of the move that was responsible for the "two cent and three cent" sales tax, saying the representative helped engineer the additional county sales tax on top of the state tax.

"Mr. Sipperley was part of the Republican machinery which engineered the passage of an illegal legislative act which would have permitted the county to literally steal the City of Poughkeepsie water works to the people, who in turn requested Gov. Rockefeller not to sign the legislation. The Governor has vetoed that bill," he noted.

Rocky on Newspaper Week

ALBANY Newspaperability: Putting the World in Focus, is this year's theme of National Newspaper Week being observed this week through Saturday.

The theme advanced in a proclamation by Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller expresses the strength and versatility of the local news, announcements and press. The newspaper gives the news in depth, clarifying function of keeping our citizens informed.

"The newspaper is one of the most important elements in our American civilization. Every week, New York State residents alone purchase more than 53 million copies of daily, weekly and Sunday newspapers. This number grows every year, because newspapers supply the information people need at an extremely modest cost.

"The newspaper is a prime community marketplace; its advertising columns provide effective communication between buyer and seller through display and classified advertising."

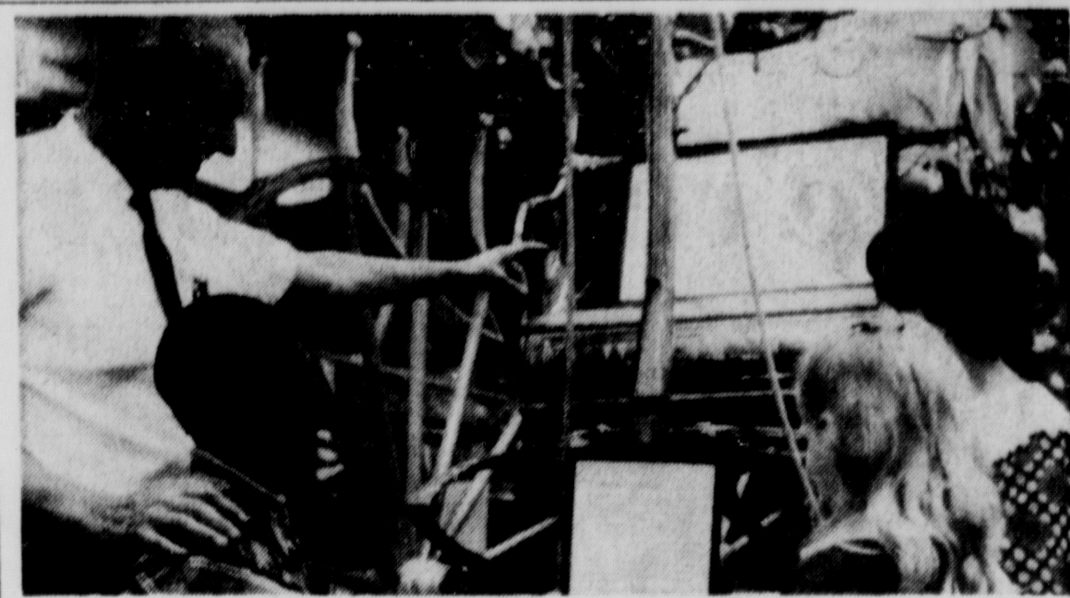

"Newspapers are also major forces for constructive change in society. By vigorous reporting, editorials and civic campaigns, the press represents its constituency of readers in a way that has genuine effects on the issues at all levels of government. In turn, readers respond to the newspaper by contributions, letters to the editor, notices and advertisements that involve them even more fully in the community," Gov. Rockefeller concluded.

Stokowski Flashes Temperament, Draws Cheers at Carnegie Hall

NEW YORK (AP) — Leopold Stokowski opened his 60th season of conducting in America

Monday night with a flash of his old-time temperament that brought cheers from a first-night audience at Carnegie Hall. Almost 100 bars through Franz Liszt's 2nd Hungarian Rhapsody, the 82-year-old maestro stopped the American Symphony Orchestra in midmelody, turned, pushed one of his famous "magic hands" towards an erring player in the bass section, shouted, "out! out!" and started the piece again.

But nobody left as the musician began the rhapsody once from the orchestra was as youthful and vivid as ever. The orchestra responded to his batonless direction and Stokowski has found the secret of played up a storm with the rous how to stay young forever. The said Philippe de Seynes, U.N. listeners—some had paid $50 for undersecretary general for economic affairs, in an intermission speech. The evening was billed as a tribute to the United Nations and the flags of the 126 members hung from the boxes. There was no mention of retirement and no public mention that this was the 60th anniversary of Stokowski becoming conductor of the Cincinnati Orchestra in 1909.

'We're Number One! Bring on Baltimore!'

SLUGGING HEROES—Ken Boswell (L) and Wayne Garrett (R) of the Mets connect for two homers in the third game of the National League playoff series yesterday. Garrett hit his homer in the fifth, while Boswell hit his in the fourth inning. Between the two hitters, they hit a total of eight homers all season. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

NEW YORK (AP) —The excitable, lovable, irresistible New York Mets are fast becoming the champagne team of baseball, already counting their bottles before they bubble.

"Nobody can stop us. We're the greatest team in the world right now. We're gonna win it all," roared Cleon Jones.

That's the way it was in the dressing room Monday where the dancing, singing Mets, too young and happy to be restrained, drenched reporters, telecasters, Mayor John Lindsay and club officials in their second champagne party over and second in almost two weeks.

Bubbling over themselves more than the champagne they were spraying at each other, the Mets celebrated their first National League pennant after beating Atlanta 7-4 for a three-game playoff sweep, and now they shouted for more.

"I can't wait for Baltimore," shouted Jones. "We're gonna win four straight and I'm gonna get (Tommy) Agee and go right out fishin' in the boat I just bought."

"We've got our blood up now," Jerry Koosman was saying off in another corner of the hysterical scene. "They (Baltimore) may have statistics to show they have better power hitters, but we've hit better than they did during the playoffs."

The Mets had just finished belting around Atlanta pitching for 27 runs and 37 hits to Atlanta's 15 runs and 27 hits during the three games, something amazing for a team that relied mostly on pitching to win the East Division title.

The Mets' victory gave them 41 wins in their last 52 games.

"I knew if it came down to hitting, we'd be the underdogs," said Manager Gil Hodges. "The hitting by both teams was a surprise."

"I've never seen hitting like this," added Koosman. "These two clubs hit the ball harder and more consistently during this series than any two I've ever seen before."

But Hodges still credited one of his unheralded pitchers, Nolan Ryan, with providing the turning point in the finale that took the Mets another step along one of baseball's most incredible stories.

The turning point was when Ryan came in. Hodges said, referring to the third inning when Ryan relieved starter Gary Gentry with runners on second and third with none out and the Braves already ahead 2-0.

"He (Ryan) has to strike out (Rico) Carty at that point, or we play again tomorrow," agreed Atlanta general manager Paul Richards.

And Ryan did. And then he struck out Clete Boyer after intentionally walking Orlando Cepeda, and finally got out of the jam by getting Bob Didier on a fly.

Ryan, in seven innings, yielded only Cepeda's two-run homer in the fifth inning and two harmless singles in the ninth. He struck out seven.

It's Just Four More Games to the Mighty Birds

JUST ONE OF MANY!—Orioles' Elrod Hendricks (10) slides safely past Twins' catcher John Roseboro to score an inside-the-park home run during the 9th inning of the Minnesota-Baltimore game. The Orioles won, 11-2, to win the American League pennant. (UPI TELEPHOTO) meaning just four more victories to prove they're one of the all-time great teams.

MINNEAPOLIS — ST. PAUL (UPI)—The slogan for the Baltimore Orioles—who methodically murdered the rest of the American League—is "just four more."

Oh, the Orioles have heard all about those "amazing" New York Mets and their "miracles" over in the National League.

But the Orioles happen to think they're pretty "amazing" too, and they've got the figures to back them up: An 11-2, 18-hit rout of the Minnesota Twins in Monday's finale to complete a three-game pennant playoff sweep.

And that follows on the heels of winning their division title by a stunning 19 games.

One of Best Teams

"I think they're one of the best American League teams I've ever seen," admitted defeated Twins' manager Billy Martin—a guy who saw an awful lot of fine league champion teams when he was a member of the old New York Yankees dynasty.

"Four more times," shouted Orioles slugger Frank Robinson in the bedlam of their victorious dressing room Monday, "now we got to do it four more times."

Manager Earl Weaver wasn't making any claims about what the Orioles would do to the Mets, although it is obvious that a four-game sweep by the Orioles in the series which starts Saturday in Baltimore would force folks to recognize this bird team as one of the great teams in baseball history.

Weaver did say he plans to throw the same three pitchers, at the Mets that whipped the Twins—southpaws Mike Cuellar and Dave McNally, who won extra-inning games Saturday and Sunday, and righthander Jim Palmer, who had the easy win Monday. Probably in that order once again.

Plans to Work Pitchers

Suddenly faced with four off days before the start of the series, Weaver said he plans to work his pitchers "as close as possible to game conditions" Thursday and Friday to keep them sharp.

Paul Blair, who once belonged to the Mets in the minors, was top gun with five hits, including a 407-foot homer, and five runs-batted-in. Don Buford had four hits, and Boog Powell, Eldon Hendricks and Mark Belanger two each.

New York-Baltimore Again

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles, the only major league baseball team with a traveling wine steward, are looking forward to their third and final champagne party of the 1969 season.

Party No. 2 was held Monday after the Orioles bombed the Minnesota Twins 11-2, winning the American League pennant with a three-game sweep in the best of 5 playoff series.

On hand in Minneapolis-St. Paul to assist with the cork-popping was Omar Aparicio, a wine steward from a downtown restaurant who is a cousin of Chicago White Sox shortstop Luis Aparicio.

The Orioles, who won a near-record 109 games while taking the Eastern Division title, now go against the New York Mets in the World Series which opens Saturday in Baltimore.

Change Trend
For the third time in nine months, a major sport matches teams from Baltimore and New York in postseason play. New York won the previous encounter.

Series Odds

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Bookmakers established Baltimore as an 8-5 favorite Monday to whip the cinderella New York Mets in baseball's World Series beginning Saturday.

Baltimore was listed as a tentative 7-5 favorite to win the Series' opening game.

"We just think Baltimore is a better team," said one legal bookie. "But the Mets could prove surprising. They could be more 'up' than Baltimore," he said.

Odds on the opening game in Baltimore will be firmed when managers name their starting pitchers.

FRANK ROBINSON

ters—the Jets upsetting the Colts in the football Super Bowl and the Knicks eliminating the Bulls from the National Basketball Association playoffs.

"We're going to reverse that trend," said veteran outfielder Frank Robinson, the Orioles' leader. Referring to a possible four-game sweep, atop the play-off string, added, "Would you believe seven straight?"

Coach Billy Hunter was more emphatic, flatly predicting a sweep for the Orioles — who flattened the Los Angeles Dodgers four in a row while winning the 1966 World Series.

Mets Are Mystery
Manager Earl Weaver was more cautious, but confident.

"The Mets are a complete mystery," Weaver said. "They hit about .241 during the regular season and then turned around in the National League playoffs and beat one of the best hitting teams (Atlanta) at its own game."

"But I have very much confidence in my pitchers," Weaver said. "I plan to use Mike Cuellar in the first game, followed by Dave McNally and Jim Palmer."

Cuellar allowed three runs in eight innings of Baltimore's 4-3 12-inning first game victory, McNally hurled a sparkling 1-0 three-hitter in 11 innings and Palmer coasted while allowing 10 hits in the windup.

During the regular season, the three pitchers combined to win 59 decisions while losing 22.

Monday's postgame celebration was relatively mild, even when compared with the division-clinching party, indicating the Orioles were already looking ahead.

"Don't waste it," Robinson said when a couple players started the traditional head-soaking routine with the champagne. "Waste it the next time around."

The Orioles, who finished the regular season in a hitting slump, rapped out 18 safeties Monday—including five by Paul Blair and four by Don Buford, ready. Omar Aparicio will be the outbreak could be timely, priming his corkscrew when where to Mets' output of 37 hits and 27 report.

runs in their three-game sweep. The Orioles will have two days off before resuming practice Thursday.

Physical Strain

"The two extra inning games took a lot out of the guys," Weaver said. "Some of them have to have tight legs after that."

Weaver, celebrating a pennant in his first full season as a major league manager, said he hadn't had too much time to think about the Mets.

Contemplating the matchup, however, he said, "The Mets are as worthy an adversary as any team the National League could put up. They won the most games. I would have hated to play a team which had a lesser record than the Mets."

While the Orioles are getting Blair and four by Don Buford, ready. Omar Aparicio will be the outbreak could be timely, priming his corkscrew when where to Mets' output of 37 hits and 27 report.

Dear Abby

Cat Harmful to Child?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
(© 1969 by Chicago Tribune
N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: As a cat owner and unofficial pet consultant on the Jacksonville Journal, I found your letter about the ailurophobic (cat-hating) mother-in-law very interesting. You are right. The story about cats sucking babies' breaths is an old wives tale, left over from the days when cats were thought to be messengers of the devil and the familiar companions of witches. You are misled about ringworm, however. I once contracted ringworm from a Siamese kitten. It's not a major threat, however, and is easily recognized by patchy skin and "bald spots." If a cat HAS ringworm, it can be transmitted to humans—especially children. Ringworm is found in cats who have roamed and been in contact with other animals. A well-cared for stay-at-home cat as a rule does not have ringworm. Sincerely,

CAROLYN McELDOWNEY

DEAR ABBY: May I add my two cents to the cat problem? We had a cat named MAYSHEH who was a real swinging bachelor, and before we realized it, MAYSHEH had picked up ringworm and had given it to all the kids in the family. The kids had to have their heads shaved, salve was applied daily and they had to wear caps night and day. Believe me, it was a mess.

Cats are naturally clean animals, you are right there. But if the family wants to keep a cat as a house pet, the cat should never be allowed to cat around. Poor MAYSHEH was neutered at the peak of his prime and he still acts like he's mad because he knows what he's missing.

CAT LOVER

DEAR ABBY: I hasten to tell you what I know about cats, and being a cat breeder, I know something.

Cats CAN — not necessarily, but CAN carry ringworm. Now, ringworm is not an internal parasite. It is a type of SKIN FUNGUS, annoying and unsightly, but easily cured. As a matter of fact, ANY warm-blooded animal can contract ringworm and transmit it to other animals and humans. In warm, damp climates, we breeders look for this fungus every spring and take precautions to prevent it. You are right. Cats DO NOT suck breath from a baby, but they should be kept out of a baby's crib for sanitation reasons. I had cats before I had children and I certainly didn't get rid of the cats. Hope this helps.

MRS. C. M. Mc

DEAR ABBY: Maybe YOU say that cats do not suck breath from babies, but I know better. Why, I pulled our cat from off my baby's chest just in the nick of time to save that child's life. Here that big old cat was, right on top of her, ready to suffocate her! They say the cats can smell milk around the baby's mouth and that is what attracts them.

OAKLAHOMA CITY

DEAR ABBY: Shame on that woman who told her pregnant daughter-in-law she should get rid of her pet cat before bringing a new-born baby into the house! Of course ANY animal which HAS a disease can infect the human members of the family, but why assume ALL cats have ringworm?

I have raised all my children with cats, and they make wonderful pets. I have adopted many stray kittens and cats, but only after taking them to the vets to determine the condition of their health first. ALL house pets should be confined to the house, and should they get loose outside and come into contact with other animals, they should be examined by a vet before addressed envelope. For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-Agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. (Hear Dear Abby Mon. thru Sat. at 10:24 a.m. WKNY-1490)

Horoscope By SIDNEY OMARR It's In The Stars

("The wise man controls his destiny . . . astrology points the way.")

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY

October 8, 1969

ARIES (March 21 - April 19):

Get relations with co-workers, associates on a more friendly level. Assume responsibility for your actions. Don't attempt to duck basic issues.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20):

Some of your creative energies are put to constructive use. Emotions go forward and so does your point of view. What was an obstacle of progress is removed.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20):

Your personal affairs get boost. You are repaid for past efforts. Be original. Stress independence of thought, action. Today you get the means required for special project.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22):

You are cheered by message, call. What you perceived turns out to be accurate. Your self-confidence returns to greater degree. Accent on writing, short trips.

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22):

Delay in money transaction is only slight. Financial matters get going at a faster pace. There are additional opportunities for expansion. Obtain hint from CANCER message.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22):

Your personal affairs are accentuated. Some restrictions become evident. Go with the tide. Proof you desire is in transit. Following minor loss, you are going to win.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22):

What was hidden is likely to be revealed. Be ready for changes. Avoid participating in whispering campaign. Stick to facts and discard rumors.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21):

A friend fulfills obligation. Excellent for entertaining at home. You should share with family good news which is due by tonight. Financial status improves.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21):

Take care in dealing with those in authority. Be wary of legal loopholes. Get promises, commitments in writing. You can advance if attitude is realistic.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19):

Communication from one you respect brightens day. Be confident. State views and adhere to principles. There is added responsibility, but also greater rewards.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18):

Finish projects. Avoid the superficial. Get facts by making pertinent inquiries. The more persistent you are, the better. Be resourceful.

PISCES (Feb. 19 - March 20):

You gain new understanding of mate, partner. Give up the limelight. Permit one close to you to take most of credit. Day to listen, observe and learn.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY

you are sensitive, but practical enough to get the job done. Conditions improve, especially in financial area. You set high goals and usually are patient enough to achieve them.

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

A BIT FURTHER? (Q.) I've been going with Tommy for four months. We like to kiss, but we like each other more than that.

Would it be OK for us to go a little further than just kissing? Is light petting all right as long as it doesn't get out of hand? We're both 15.—T.D. in Washington, D.C.

(A.) You have evidently gone far enough to realize that when you go further than kissing things get out of hand. Your conscience is a good guide. When it tells you "No!", it would be smart to listen, especially since you're 15 and have several years of school ahead of you.

DARKNESS: (Q.) The skin on the knuckles of my hands and joints of my fingers is darker than the rest of my hand. This makes my hands look dirty, and I'm ashamed of them. I am adopted and often wonder if the discoloration comes from mixed blood.

Do you know anything I could do to correct it? I am considered attractive otherwise.—Dirty Knuckles in New Jersey.

(A.) Look at other people's hands. You'll see many with dark knuckles, even dark patches of skin on the backs of their hands.

They get along fine without a bleach job. Quit worrying about your hands.

And remember that all our blood is mixed. If it hadn't been mixing for ages, none of us would be here.

TRAFFIC TROUBLE

WHEN A GALAPAGOS GIANT TORTOISE TRAVELS, HE FOLLOWS A STRAIGHT LINE. HE EXPECTS THE RIGHT OF WAY.

HOURS LATER, THE ARMORED, 500-POUND MONSTER STILL REFUSES TO DETOUR.

innuendo (IN-yoo-EN-do) a hidden message
The poem contains a certain innuendo that none of the critics can understand.
His speeches are filled with numerous innuendoes; consequently, I never know what he really means.

Gen. Wheeler's Parting Shot:

U.S. in Vietnam for 'Some Time to Come'

SAIGON (UPI)—The United States will have to keep troops in Vietnam for "some time to come," the nation's top military man said today. More than 550 Army reservists and National Guardsmen left the war zone.

As jet transport planes left fields in South Vietnam's northern quarter and near Saigon with the departing troops, Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, left Vietnam after a three-day visit. Wheeler said he shared President Nguyen Van Thieu's hope that most U.S. troops could be withdrawn by the end of next year. But he warned against haste.

Leaving Vietnam today were the 295th Ammunition Co., of Hastings, Neb., and the 107th Signal Co., a National Guard unit from East Greenwich, R.I. Military spokesmen said the last elements of the first group of 5,000 Marines to be withdrawn under the second phase withdrawal left northern quarter bases early today. About 1,000 Marines went to Okinawa and the other 4,900 to the United States.

Fighting was light over the past 24 hours with the Communists shelling 21 targets. Six of the attacks caused casualties including two Americans wounded.

Wheeler left for the Philippines following a three-day assessment of the war and the progress in turning fighting over to the South Vietnamese. "We would like to reduce the number of our forces here as rapidly as we can, with prudence and safety, while maintaining our capability to gain our objectives in Southeast Asia," Wheeler said.

"We would have to continue to support our South Vietnamese allies for some time to come," he said. "I would not venture to prognosticate at this time to what degree President Thieu's hope can be realized."

"I think the answer, the solution, will appear within the months to come."

In the war, U.S. infantrymen supported by helicopter gunships firing machine guns and rockets fought a Communist company in the jungled Central Highlands, military spokesmen said today.

The fighting went on for more than an hour near An Khe, 278 miles northeast of Saigon, with troops of the U.S. 4th Infantry Division suffering no casualties.

In the northern quarter Monday, 1,800 Marines boarded troop ships at Da Nang and sailed for Okinawa in drenching rain. The troops were members of the 3rd Marine Division withdrawing as part of President Nixon's second phase pullout.

South Vietnamese communiques said Communist shellings of two provincial capitals killed four Vietnamese civilians and wounded 18 others. The bombardments hit Phan Thiet 94 miles east of Saigon Monday night and Can Tho in the Mekong Delta, 75 miles south-west of Saigon.

Major General Is Summoned In Scandal of Service Club

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Senate investigators summoned Maj. Gen. Carl C. Turner to answer charges today he hushed up a service club scandal and used his office for personal gain when he was the Army's provost marshal general.

Turner was fired one month ago by the Nixon administration as chief of U.S. marshals, a job he took after retiring as the Army's top police officer in November.

He has been accused of covering up an alleged conspiracy of career Army sergeants who drained U.S. service clubs around the world by "skimming" slot machines, stealing liquor by the case and paying themselves extra salaries while on leave or hospitalized.

The Senate permanent investigations subcommittee entered its second week of open hearings on the service clubs scandal.

The subcommittee said it had evidence Turner used his position to obtain without cost, confiscated firearms from city police officials, and sold them for personal gain.

Turner's attorney has indicated

ed his client will freely respond to subcommittee questions and not take the Fifth Amendment, although his testimony could be used against him in any later criminal proceeding.

Phillip R. Manuel, staff investigator for the subcommittee testified Monday Turner had been unable to account for 500 firearms he had obtained free from the Kansas City, Mo., and Chicago Police departments. The confiscated arms—all shapes and varieties of rifles and hand guns—normally would have been destroyed, but police said Turner convinced them he wanted to use the weapons for Army training and for display in U.S. Military Police museums.

Pentagon on Hanoi POWs--

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Pentagon has informed about 3,000 wives and parents of captured U.S. servicemen that North Vietnam may respond to private appeals for information about POWs, defense officials report.

Spokesmen said the armed services passed the word last week in an effort to keep American families abreast of developments involving prisoners or missing men presumed alive in Vietnam.

North Vietnam about the same time began accusing the United States of trying to whip up emotions among the relatives of POWs as a means of pressuring communist delegates at the Paris peace talks.

Defense officials say this was not their motive. The Pentagon, they say, was merely carrying out its responsibility to the families of POWs or missing men.

An officer acknowledged that the Pentagon was walking a fine line and leaving itself open to propaganda charges.

"But we were just informing people of Hanoi's willingness to answer letters from relatives writing on their own," he said.

As the Pentagon understands it, the North Vietnamese in Paris will accept private inquiries and receive relatives, pass the questions onto Hanoi and later forward any responses to the families.

The Pentagon says it knows of no responses received by any of the several wives who first called upon the North Vietnamese delegation in Paris about three weeks ago.

According to some accounts, North Vietnam has asked wives to provide such information about captured servicemen as name, rank, serial number, the type of aircraft they may have been aboard when lost over North Vietnam, the date and general location.

A spokesman said the Pentagon has not discouraged relatives from providing such information even though the men themselves are obliged under long-standing policy to give only their name, rank and serial number.

Beret Captain Confident of Acquittal

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Green Beret Capt. John J. McCarthy Jr. says he is "confident" he will be acquitted of the murder of a Cambodian aide in Vietnam, for which he spent nearly two years in confinement.

McCarthy started a month-long home leave with his family

a South Vietnamese agent might have led to his release, McCarthy said. "The only parallel is that we all belong to the same unit."

McCarthy, 26, flew to Phoenix and was met by his wife, his three children and his parents. "It's good to be home," he said. "I've been assigned to Ft. Huachuca, (in Arizona) but I haven't been told yet what my duty station will be."

McCarthy was convicted by court-martial in Long Binh, Vietnam, of the murder of In-chin Hai Lam. The aide was shot while in a car on a road outside Saigon. McCarthy, who was riding in the car with Lam and a Green Beret sergeant, conceded at the trial that he was holding a .32 caliber revolver, cocked and loaded, when there was a shot and the Cambodian slumped, lead.

Jerusalem Mosque

Sheepshearer Admits Setting the Fire

JERUSALEM (AP)—Michael Denis Rohan admitted in court today that he set fire to the Al Aqsa Mosque on Aug. 21 but pleaded "mental illness."

Defense Attorney Yitzhak Tunik entered the plea for the 28-year-old Australian sheepshearer a few minutes after the start of the second day in his trial before three Israeli judges.

At the opening of the trial

Monday, a police superintendent testified that Rohan, in a detailed confession, told police he set fire to the Jerusalem mosque to clear the site for the rebuilding there of Solomon's Temple.

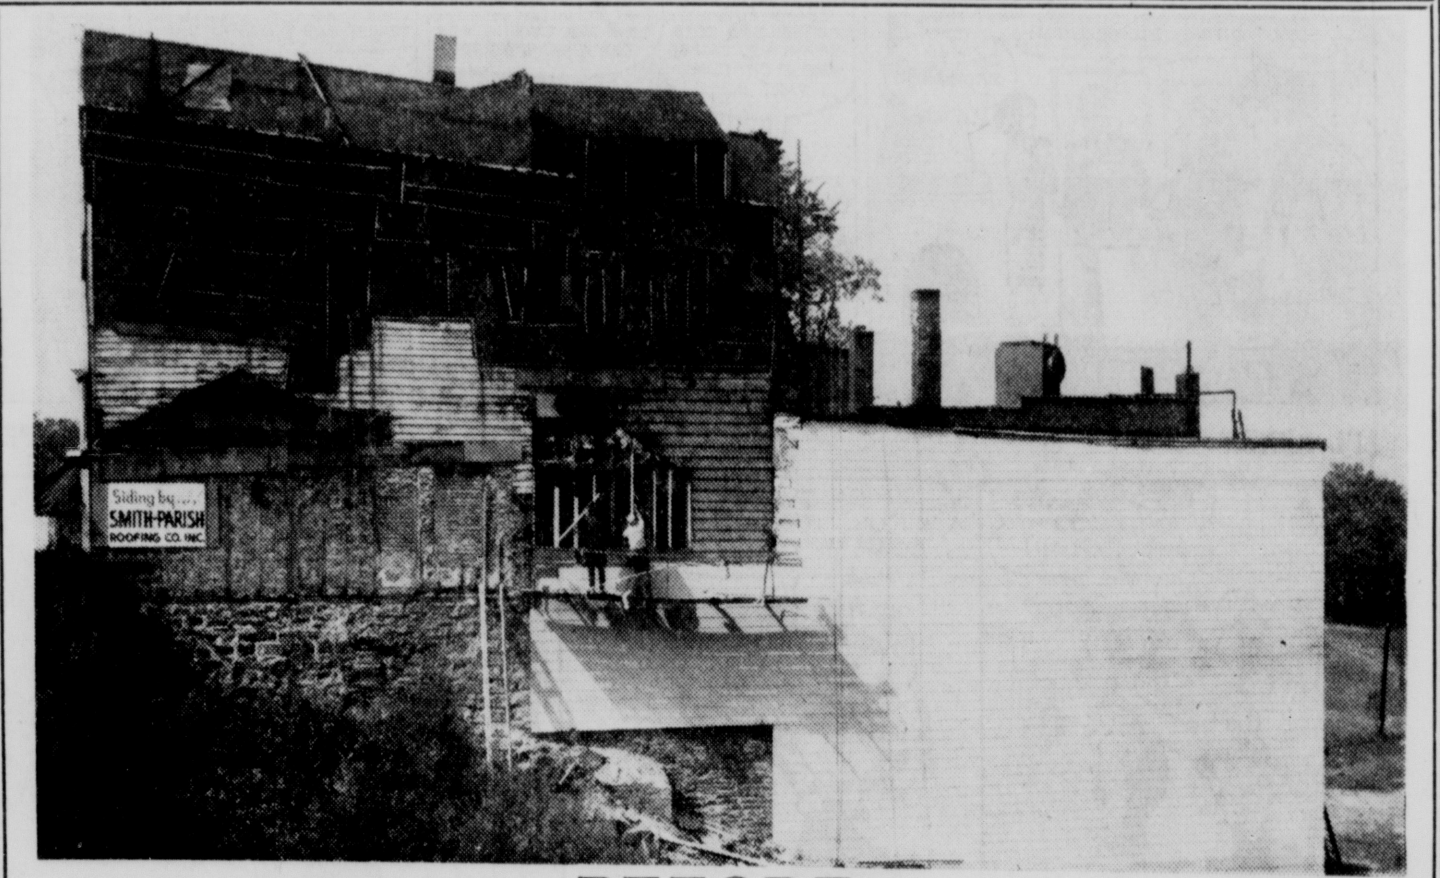

The site in Old Jerusalem is hallowed by Moslems as the spot from which the Prophet Mohammed ascended into Heaven, and by Jews as the site of Solomon's Temple. The Wall at one side is the last surviving remnant of the temple. Rohan is a member of a Christian sect which believes that the Messiah will not come until the temple is rebuilt.

At the start of the trial Tunik announced that Rohan admitted neither the four charges of arson and desecration of a holy place filed against him nor any of the facts in the indictment. But today the defense attorney told the court the young Australian admitted setting the fire Aug. 21 and making a prior attempt to set the mosque ablaze on Aug. 11.

The statement also admitted that Rohan had been living in hotels in Jerusalem, frequently visiting the mosque and purchasing materials used in the arson. But Tunik claimed that the defendant had not made the purchases with the firing of the mosque in mind.

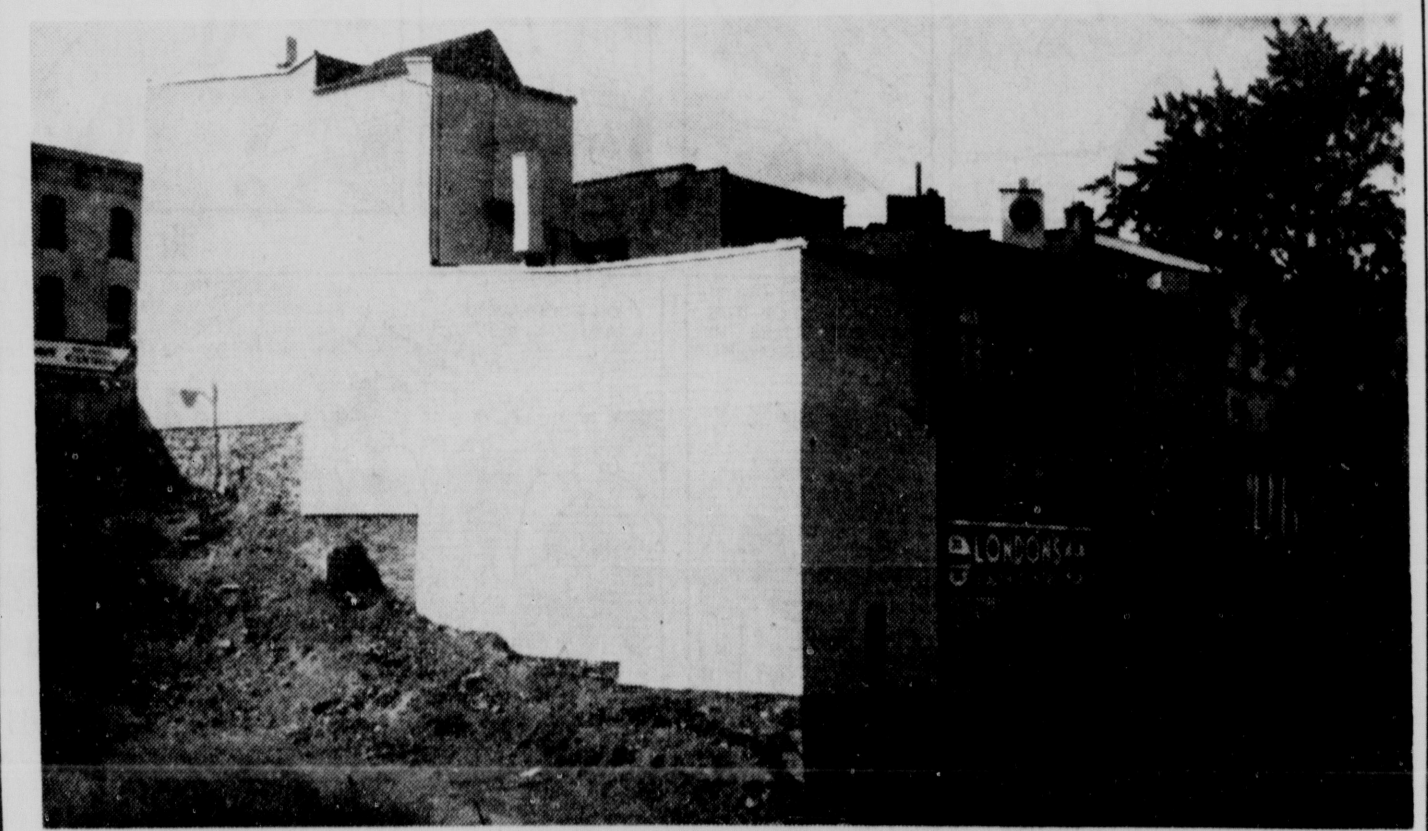

Rohan is "not punishable by law" because of his mental condition, "which rendered him in-

The Judge Ready To Make Switch

WASHINGTON (AP)—Judge Clement F. Haynsworth says he would be willing to put his financial holdings under a trusteeship to "avoid any further suggestion of conflict of interest" if the Senate approves his appointment to the Supreme Court.

This word from the White House Monday came as both supporters and critics of the nomination worked to ready reports on Haynsworth's fitness to sit on the high court.

Haynsworth's leading opponent, Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., had been going through a stack of financial records. He said a preliminary look had led him to actively fight the nomination.

On the other side, nomination backers had prepared their defense of Haynsworth's civil rights decisions while a judge on the 4th U.S. Court of Appeals.

In making the trust announcement, the White House said the idea came from the wealthy South Carolina jurist himself and not from President Nixon who is fighting to win Senate confirmation of the nomination.

Haynsworth, contacted in South Carolina, confirmed he had made the suggestion to the administration last week. He said he had not thought out how the trust would work.

"But I'm agreeable to any agreement that would avoid any further suggestion of conflict of interest," he said.

Haynsworth has been attacked for ruling on cases involving firms in which he had financial connections.

In the past some executive appointees have established trusteeships while they have been in office, turning management of their financial affairs over to a trustee to avoid conflict of interest situations.

Both sides had hoped to get the reports out in time for Wednesday's meeting of the Judiciary Committee. The committee delayed action last week and there was mixed opinion whether it will vote on the nomination this time.
